No-till means no run-off, says USDA's Myers

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER – The USDA's Assistant Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment came to Lancaster's Farm and Home Center on Tuesday to promote no-till systems, and offer insight into the administration's market-oriented approach to Farm Bill '85

Speaking to 300 farmers at the Lancaster County Conservation District's fourth annual Conservation Tillage Conference, Peter Myers expressed confidence in the agricultural community's ability to manage soil and water

I think we can clean up our own house," said the former Soil Conservation Service chief, 'but we're (farmers) only three percent of the population and some day we're going to have to answer to the rest of society," he cautioned

And the surest way to solve the current soil erosion and nutrient run-off problems, according to Myers, is by adopting no-till systems.

'In my opinion, as a farmer, I think no-till fits into most farming operations ' he said Economically, there's no doubt in my mind that when you lose soil you lose dollars–right now "

And in a dry year, you're normally going to make a better crop, he pointed out, speaking from his own experience as a swine farmer in Missouri

Alluding to the fact that no-till farming is not the sole answer to the water pollution problem, Myers emphasized that good herbicide management is crucial

I have very strong concerns about herbicide management," he said, noting that improper use and disposal of excess chemicals can have grave consequences for the environment. In his own state of Missouri, Myers said, farmers must first pass a test and obtain a license before purchasing any farm chemicals

Pointing out that no-till farming, definitely cuts the cost of production," Myers added that, if he were a young farmer getting started today his equipment purchases would include a used tractor, a sprayer and a new no-till planter

But even the most efficient production methods probably won't help those farmers carrying excessive debt loads, said Myers, turning to a discussion of the farm bill

Briefly outlining the current proposal, he said that the administration hopes to make the transition to a market-oriented ag economy within three years To accomplish this, loan rates would drop to 75 percent of a commodity's price based on the average market value during the past three years

To ease the impact of lower loan rates, the administration plans to reimburse farmers for the difference between the loan rates and the target price. For the first year of the program the target price would equal 100 percent of a commodity's value based on the same three-year average

The target price would drop in succeeding years, lowering a farmer's deficiency payment This pattern would continue until the target price reached the loan rate, whereupon farm income would be tied directly to market demand for products

'The concept, I think, is sound, ' said Myers, but my personal opinion is that the time period is

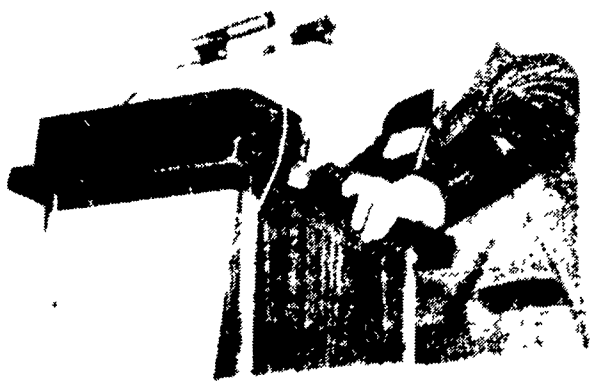
Keynote speaker at the Lancaster County Conservation Tillage Conference on Tuesday was USDA Assistant Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment Peter Myers, who urged farmers to put away their plows in favor of no-till systems.

Strong dollar hurts ag trade, CoreStates economist says



Corestates Financial Corp. economist A. Gilbert Heebner, talked about the value of the dollar and its impact on agricultural trade, during a speech to the Hamilton Bank Agri-Education Seminar this week at the Farm and Home Center.

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

LANCASTER – A brutally strong U S dollar has helped keep inflation down but has hurt our ability to export by making our prices too high, a CoreStates economist told about 300 farmers this week

Thus, important sectors of our economy, including some manufacturing industries and agriculture, have not shared in the recent prosperity, ' CoreStates Executive Vice President A Gilbert Heebner told the Hamilton Bank Agri-Education Seminar at the Farm and Home Center

At the same time that the strong currency makes our exporting prices too high, it makes foreign goods much less expensive Thus, it stimulates low-priced foreign competition like Canadian pork or grain from South America and other competitors

As a result, he concluded, In agricultural commodities, where we normally have a large surplus of exports over imports, the surplus dwindled from $27 billion in 1981 to about $18 billion in 1984

Despite the adverse effects on the farm economy, there's no easy way to bring down the value of the dollar without stimulating increased inflation and higher interest rates, he said

The result, then, is an increase in the misery index" for farmers, which, he said, is the ratio of prices paid for feed and equipment, compared to the prices received for farm products

Grange proposes new action to address debt problem

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The governing board of the nation's farm organization, the National Grange, today urged Congress to move promptly to stem the increasing incidence of farmers unable to obtain credit to plant their 1985 crops. The action came in response to growing criticism among the farm financial community that the Reagan Administration's announced farm credit package is insufficient to keep many farm families from bankruptcy.

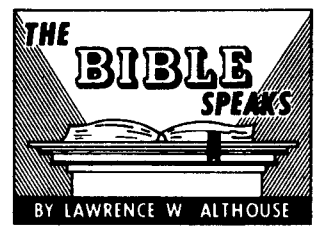
In a letter to Sen. Mark Hatfield (R-Ore.) who chairs the Senate Appropriations Committee, National Grange Master Edward Andersen called for an increase from $650 million to $3 billion the amount available for Farmers Home Administration loan guarantees, for Congress to provide $100 million for matching funds for private lenders to aid in an interest rate "buy-down" program, for elimination of all requirements that lenders forgive a portion of interest or principal in order to qualify for the FmHA loan guarantees, and for "targeting" or focusing this lending assistance to farmers and ranchers who market up to a maximum of $200,000 in gross sales per year.

Andersen's letter points out that farmers and ranchers have borne the burden for the nation's reduced inflation picture in the past months. "The American farmer is paying for the lower inflation rate through high real interest rates on long term debt and by a drastic decline in asset values," Andersen noted. The decline in asset values, particularly for land and machinery, has eliminated many farmers' main source of collateral against which loans were made for crop planting.

The Grange, representing nearly 400,000 members, is also concerned with the well-being of the farm communities which rely on farm income to purchase goods and services. Andersen warns that unless means are found to aid financially distressed farmers, "thousands upon thousands of medium-to moderate-size family farmers will be gone from rural America and with them the economic structure that sustains rural communities."

The Grange's credit proposal goes far beyond that announced by President Reagan shortly before the November election and further refined by Agriculture Secretary John Block earlier this month. "The funding levels in the Administration's plan are far from adequate to meet the immediate needs," Andersen said, "and it is so encumbered with administrative and procedural requirements that our planting season could come and go before its effects can be seen." Andersen points to the Grange's historical support for the moderate scale producers and suggests that limits to the loan amounts must be incorporated into any effective credit package. "We don't want to see a credit program hastily written that bails out the corporate speculative landowner leaving the family producers to fall by the wayside," Andersen remarked.

The $100 million for interest buy-down would be available only to commercial and cooperative lenders who also agree to sustain a similar amount of reduced income. For example, Andersen explained, "If in order to keep a farmer in business his interest must be reduced by four percent, the lender would receive half of that loss in interest income from the U.S. Treasury." The Grange feels this program is essential to accommodate the credit needs of family agriculture this crop season. Andersen concluded, "We further hope that Congress and the Reagan Administration will reassess its farm lending programs keeping in mind the long term financial well-being of moderate scale family farmers."



ON RECOGNIZING HIS DISCIPLES
March 3, 1985

Background Scripture:
John 13.
Devotional Reading:
John 15:11-17.

The hour of twelve midnight has come and gone. The house is silent except for my stereo turned down low and the noise of my typewriter. I'm burning the proverbial "midnight oil" because I have a deadline to meet and there were not enough hours in the day.

Although both my mind and body yearn for the warmth and comfort of my bed, I turn to the assigned scriptural passage for the week and begin to read the familiar words of John 13. Yet, even though I've read these words many times before, something not new, but at least newly urgent leaps out at me from the printed page:

By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another. (13:35).

STABBED BY WORDS

Suddenly, that which began as the task of finding something to say to you has become an experience in which God has managed once again to say something to me. The words stab me as an accusation: "How many people know that I am a disciple of Christ because they witness the love I bear for others?"

I would like to think that somewhere along the way there have been a few who saw me at work or play and discerned enough love in what I did and said and was to determine that I am a follower of the Jesus Christ–but I'm not so sure. And you? Do not those words of our Lord stab you a little too?

In fact, I'm not at all sure that love plays much of a role in identifying Christians in our world today. When Christians "make the news" today, it seldom seems to have [illegible] to do with love. Conflict, yes– "CHURCH SPLIT BY LEGAL DISPUTE." And disagreement-- "CONSERVATIVES AND LIBERAL CHURCHMEN CLASH." Even violence: "PROTESTANT GROUP AMBUSHES CATHOLICS IN BELFAST. "But, love? Not too often. Not often enough.

MASTERS AND SERVANTS

I'm not suggesting that Christians are never known by their love or that all conflict between Christ's disciples is necessarily evil. What I'm feeling at this moment is that there just isn't enough love anywhere to fulfill Christ's command to "love one another." Not in me and not in many like me.

And just in case the words themselves might not sink in as they should, Jesus puts it into a picture which none of us can fail to comprehend or forget: "...he began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel with which he was girded" (13:5).

Peter protests–as we too would be likely to do–for it is unseemingly that he, our Lord and Master, should wash our feet. But, unlike many of us, Jesus never felt diminished by assuming the role of servant. His dignity, his pride were not taken away by humbling himself. And thus was he able to do humble acts of love–and challenge us to do so as well. And know this: both he and the world are watching.

To Broadcast Legumes

Alfalfa and red clover growers who are planning to broadcast the seed into a stand of winter wheat or barley should be preparing their seed now. Research and experience have both proven that early March seeding will give the best results. It's the time of year when the ground freezes and thaws frequently, creating a "honeycomb" condition to the top soil. This is an excellent way to give the seeds a light covering of top soil. If the broadcast seeding is made in late March, this condition may not prevail.

The seeds should be of top quality and be innoculated with legume bacteria before seeding.

To Attend Poultry Progress Day

The third annual Poultry Progress Day will be held on Thursday, March 7, in the auditorium at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster. The program will start at 9 a.m. and end at 3 p.m. Lunch will be available. An excellent program has been developed by the Poultry Association Education Committee. Speakers will deal with "Management For Profits;" "Working With Your Banker;" "Proper Egg Handling;" "Working With Your Serviceman;" "Fly Control;" "Marketing Order Update;" "Poultry Health and Disease Surveillance;" and the important area of "How Agriculture Affects Water Quality."

We encourage poultry producers and people interested in the poultry industry to take the time to attend this important meeting.

To Apply Manure

This is the season of the year that a lot of manure is applied in preparation for corn planting. We need to be concerned with proper application of liquid or solid manure in such a way as to minimize odors and avoid pollution complaints.

Application should be made from mid-morning to mid-afternoon to allow maximum odor dispersion and manure drying before the calm, night time hours when neighbors are home from work. Fields for disposal should be downwind, rather than upwind from neighbors.

Whenever possible the manure should be plowed under or disked into the soil as soon as possible after spreading. This practice not only minimizes odors but also preserves nutrients and reduces potential for surface run-off that causes water contamination.

To Mend Pasture Fences

Pastures can provide cattle a lot of good, nutritious forage, and it's a place for them to get fresh air, exercise and sunlight. Before too long, we will be turning our cattle out to pasture, but let's not turn them out too soon. It's best to let the sod develop and the ground firm up. Spend the time now to fix fences and pick up trash and debris before the grass gets too tall and before you're tied down with spring field work.

It might also be helpful to section off the pasture in order to make best use of the grass. For example, wet areas and flat areas may be fenced off from other areas. This will enable you to keep cows out of wet areas until the ground firms up, and could help prevent the development of foot problems. During the early spring flush of pasture growth, you could keep cattle out of the flat area; save it for hay, and feed it to the cows later in the summer.

Tons of hazardous pesticides, paints, cleaners and solvents stored in basements and garages may be the country's biggest hidden pollution problem, says International Wildlife magazine. A regional government agency in Seattle estimates there are more than 100,000 pounds of the banned pesticide DDT stored in the Seattle suburbs alone. Some 25 states are setting up toxic waste collection points to help combat this problem.

Atlantic honors Lancaster dairy farmers

LANCASTER — Southern Lancaster area dairymen were honored for having the high producing herds this past year at the 21st annual District 5 Meeting for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative members held recently at Solanco Fairgrounds.

Receiving Certificates of Merit for having top Dairy Herd Improvement Association averages were Kenneth L. Beiler, Marlin R. Beiler, Leroy S. Weaver, Lester Wiker, Robert Gochenaur Jr., Kreider & Nickle, Parke H. Rank, J. Wade Groff, Gusty Crest Farm, J. Robert Kindig, Calvin D. Beiler, Clifford & Joyce Blank, Harry H. Ranck Jr., Edgefield Farms, C Nevin Hershey, Singing Maple Farms, Thomas C. Lapp, Jay L. Ranck, Walter Pownall, John U. Glick. All herds were at least 10 percent above the state average for milk or butterfat production last year, while at least two-thirds of the cows in these herds are progeny of Atlantic sires. Awards were presented by Dave Zimmerman, Atlantic's Field Supervisor for this area.

District 5 Director James Kreider of Quarryville informed members of the retirement of David Yoder after 41 years of service to Atlantic and the AI Industry. He also announced the appointment of Harry Roth as the new General Manager. The emphasis of this new management will still be the same - Membership Programs.

Following a new film showing Atlantic's facilities and service programs and a discussion of current popular sires, management representative Gary Heckman of Lancaster, pointed out that the Cooperative is dedicated to giving members the service they want by emphasizing quality technician and direct-herd service in the entire member area.

Members present voted for District representatives for the coming year. Election results will be announced in the next issue of the Cooperative's newsletter, since more than one meeting is held in most of Atlantic's 16 districts.

Lancaster Dairy Days on March 4, 5

LANCASTER — The Annual Lancaster County Dairy Days will be held March 4 and 5 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. Each day of the two-day event features a different program. Refreshments will be served and exhibits will be on display at 9:00 a.m. Lunch will be served, and meal tickets may be purchased until 11:00

Monday's program will start with a 9:30 slide presentation on Fat Test Variations. Dennis Murphy, Penn State Agr. Engineer, will focus on Farm Hazards as he discusses hay and silo fires, manure and silo gases, dusts, farmer's lung, etc. Hoof Care and Hoof Problems will be the topic of Richard Bartholomew from New Bolton Center, as he will talk about the different kinds of foot problems, how to prevent them and how to treat them.

Tom Jurchak's topic of Your Milk Check will let him emphasize the issues that affect milk prices, discuss trends, and bring us more up to date on RCMA (Regional Cooperative Marketing Association) and the proposed over-order pricing of Class 1 milk. U. S. Farm Policy at a Crossroads is the topic of William McSweeney, Penn State Farm Management Specialist.

Tuesday's program will begin with a 9:30 a.m. slide presentation. Trooper Joseph Althoff of the Lancaster Barracks will talk about Farm Security, emphasizing arson, theft, vandalism, etc. County Agent Glenn Shirk will help guide dairymen in making Culling and Replacement Decisions.

Many new developments are coming on the scene, and others are not far away - such things as growth hormones, isoacids, improved efficiency of protein carbohydrate and fiber utilization, controlled lighting, etc. These will be discussed by Brian Perkins, Pennfield Corporation, in his topic of New Technology for Boosting Production and Efficiency. He'll also be helping us better understand relationship between Body Condition and Cow Performance.

Water Quality Problems are a growing concern of many farmers. Karen Mancl, Penn State Agr. Engineer, will discuss various problems and alternative courses of action. The slide presentation on Fat Test Variations will be shown after lunch on Tuesday.

Apple Market News Service

Tuesday, February 26
Report Supplied the PDA

Good Morning. The market is strong this week with demand high. Prices are holding steady and supplies are good.

Exports are continuing with shipments to Central and South America reported this week.

Those of you who have attended your county association's winter meetings have heard of the activities of the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board. You have heard about the various promotions and advertising that your board has done for you in 1984. These activities have brought Pennsylvania apples to the attention of million olf consumers. Your Apple Marketing Board has expanded its activities to a year-round promotional effort by putting on a strong fall promotion, a good winter-spring rebate program, and participating in many trade and consumer shows all year long.

There will be referendum held later this year to determine that Pennsylvania apple growers want this program to continue for another five years. Growers will receive ballots later this year, probably late April or early May. Give this vote your careful consideration. Consider what the board has done for apple growers in Pennsylvania over the past 17 years that the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program has been in existence, and then vote.

Prices quoted are wholesale, truckload, F.O.B. at the orchard or packing house.

Farm Bureau dairy leader to speak at N.J. ag meeting

FLEMINGTON, N.J. - Mr. William Pettit, Burlington County dairy farmer and dairy industry leader, will speak at the upcoming meeting of the Hunterdon County Board of Agriculture, March 6.

Pettit is chairman of the American Farm Bureau's Dairy Advisory Committee, a group of dairy industry leaders who represent dairy farmers across the country and advise the AFB's board of directors on policy matters affecting the nation's dairymen.

At the March 6 meeting, Pettit will comment on the present dairy situation, and the effects of the diversion plan. Having just returned from a two-day AFB dairy committee work session which focused on the surplus question and developing a new dairy program to be proposed in Washington, Pettit will discuss some of the remedies being proposed by various groups and disclose Farm Bureau's new dairy program.

Pettit and his wife, Dorothy, operate Huff 'n Puff Farm, near Juliustown, N.J. They have developed an outstanding registered Holstein herd in their family farm operation.

The March 6 meeting, which will include time for questions, will be held at the Hunterdon Extension Center, Flemington, N.J., at 8:00 p.m. All interested persons are urged to attend.

For more information, contact Calvin G. Wettstein at the Hunterdon County Extension Service, 4 Gauntt Place, Flemington, N.J. 08822.

McCracken's Mill hosts dairyman's seminar

MANHEIM – McCracken's Feed Mill's Third Annual Dairyman's Seminar last week touched on water quality, reproduction, feed supplements and services.

Meeting at Encks Baron Stiegel Restaurant the McCracken customers heard Dr. Richard C. Croyle of Bio Metrics Laboratory, in the Buck, talk on "Water Quality–A Problem or a Solution". J. Nevin Gish, McCracken's nutritional consultant organized and served as Master of Ceremonies for the event.

Professor R. David Smith of Cornell University led a lively discussion on improving management of the reproduction process to increase profit.

During lunch the assembled dairy farmers collected door prizes and were able to discuss problems with the speakers, McCrackens' staff and each other.

"We are most concerned with providing service to our customers," Gish said."From forage testing and water sampling to computerized charting and corn exchange, we want to help our customers be more productive."

The afternoon was led by Dr. LaVern Schugel, vice president for research and technical services for Zin Pro Corporation. He provided in-depth information on the value of supplementing dairy feeds with the Zin Pro brand of zinc methionine.

McCracken's Feed Mill, Inc. at 63 New Charlotte Street in Manheim offers a complete line of products and services for cattle, swine and horses.

Berks course for young workers

LEESPORT – Farm employers and parents of young farm employees should insist that youth working on farms this summer have proper training and certification.

The child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, mandate that youth under 17 years of age cannot be employed in certain agricultural operations unless they have had special training and received certification. While the provisions do not apply to youth working on farms of their parents or guardians, the training is still essential for all young farm workers.

The Berks County Cooperative Extension Service will offer an agricultural equipment safety and certification course to teach 13 to 16 year old youths about normal working hazards involved with tractors and other farm machinery. Certificates of completion will be issued upon successful completion of the course. The course will involve classroom training and operation of tractors and farm equipment.

The course will begin on Wednesday, March 20, 1985, and will run for four consecutive Wednesdays. The first two classes (March 20 & 27) will be at the Berks County Agricultural Center, 7:00 - 9:00 p.m. The second two (April 3 & 10) will be held at Shartlesville Farm Service, 6:00 - 9:00 p.m. The final testing will be held on Saturday, April 13, 1985 8:00 a.m. at Shartlesville Farm Service.

Course instructors will be Christine Williams, Kutztown, Vo-Ag Dept. and Lynn Van Tassel, Hamburg Area Vo-Ag Department.

To enroll in the course, contact Chris States at the Extension office 378-1327 by March 15. Penn State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity university.

Farm Bureau opposes '85 Farm Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Reagan Administration's farm bill proposal "is based solely on budget considerations with a total disregard for its economic impact on farmers," according to the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Robert Delano, a Virginia corn and soybean farmer, said the nation's largest farm organization would oppose the proposal.

"The Administration's bill has been constructed to fit within budget guidelines established by the Office of Management and Budget with little thought to the effect on farmers. Even those of us who want to see a reduction in government spending cannot support a farm program based solely on budget consideration," the farm leader said.

Delano said Farm Bureau will have a farm bill introduced in Congress in mid-March. The Farm Bureau legislation will stress programs designed to enhance net farm income rather than continue the income stagnation that agriculture has suffered for the past five years.

"Our bill will stress commodity loan prices based on market realities, the elimination of the farmer-owned grain reserve program, continuation of the income protection provided by target prices and additional funding of export development and export credit programs," he said.

"While Farm Bureau can agree with some specific areas of the Administration proposal, such as market-oriented commodity loan levels, we disagree with much of the proposal and will instead push our own bill in Congress."

Art-Acres Kay offspring shine in Maryland Convention Sale

BY WENDY WEHR

GAITHERSBURG, Md. — Three Art-Acres Elevation Kay offspring made headlines last week at state Holstein convention sales in the Northeast.

While Art-Acres Kay J-ET brought a hefty bid of $30,000 at the Pa. Holstein Convention Sale, two other Kay progeny emerged as the high selling animals in the Maryland Convention Sale.

The 1985 Maryland Holstein Convention culminated with the spirited convention sale, held Feb. 23, at the Montgomery County Fairgrounds, Gaithersburg, Md.

Art-Acres Kay T-ET, a maternal sister to Kay J, earned the highest bid of the day in Maryland. Savage-Leigh Farm, Boyds, Md., assumed ownership of Kay T for $14,000, while Fair Hill Farm, Chestertown, Md., contended for the heifer. She was consigned by her breeders, Art-Acres of Hagerstown, Md.

Hawked as a daughter from "probably one of the greatest transmitting cows in the Holstein industry and particularly in Maryland," Kay T is a 5-month-old heifer from a Marshfield Elevation Tony service.

Kay, the consignment's dam, is scored Ex-91, GMD, and has produced a milk record as a 5-year-old of 34,000 pounds milk with 1115 pounds fat.

But Kay-T's top price was followed closely by that of another Kay descendent. Placing the second-high bid of the sale, Rothrock Golden Holsteins, of Kempton, purchased Art-Acres Columbus Kelly D for $13,500. Skip Maynard, of Brid-Vent Farms, Bridport, Vt., was the determined contender.

Consigned by Fair Hill Farm, Chestertown, Md., Kelly D is a 13-month heifer out of Art-Acres Kay G - ET, a full sister to Kay J, the pricey consignment to the Philadelphia sale. Both are offspring of the Valiant-Kay match-up.

Both Kay G and Kay have indexes of more than +1200. Kay G is scored VG-87 as a 2-year-old. The Kelly D heifer is sired by the high PD Leadfield Columbus bull.

Two other consignments to the Maryland convention sale, both Valiant daughters, surpassed the $10,000 mark. Braver Valiant Angie brought $13,000, while Tri-Day Valiant Polly left the sale ring at $10,200.

Consigned by Robert D. Raver, Dickerson, Md., the 2-year-old Braver Valiant Angie is a Valiant out of the Amy cow family. Savage-Leigh Magic Amy, third dam of the Angie heifer, scored 4E-95 with over 200,000 pounds milk lifetime.

Angie was purchased by Marlin

Art-Acres Kay T-ET topped the Maryland Holstein Convention Sale. Purchased by Savage-Leigh Farm, Boyds, Md., for $14,000, Kay-T is a maternal sister to a high-selling consignment at the Pa. Convention Sale last week in Philadelphia.

Following as a close second in bidding at the Md. Holstein Convention Sale, Art-Acres Columbus Kelly D brought $13,500 from Rothrock Golden Holsteins, Kempton.

The third high selling animal was Braver Valiant Angie. She was purchased by Marlin Hoff, New Windsor, Md., for $13,000 at the Maryland Holstein Convention Sale.

This year the Maryland Holstein Association awarded $4,200 in scholarships to junior members to attend the agricultural college of their choice. Included among the scholarship recipients were: Mark Stull, Kimberly King, Patricia Kahler, and Donald Moore.

GAITHERSBURG, Md. - From west to east, from the rugged hills of Garrett County to the southern most tip of the the state's Eastern Shore, Maryland Holstein breeders gathered last week for their 21st annual convention and sale here in Gaithersburg.

Hosted by the Montgomery County Holstein club, the cattle breeders enjoyed two days of business and pleasure, education and recognition at the state convention. Award presentations — to young and old alike — were a special highlight for the Holstein enthusiasts.

Some of the established Holstein Association members to receive praise were 10 Maryland breeders who earned the coveted Progressive Breeder Award this year. Recognizing standards of achievement in both production and type, the award was presented to: Kingstead Farms, 30 years; C. Renn Remsberg, 23 years; Maple Lawn Farms, Inc., 18 years; Marlin Hoff, 4 years; Carl L. Bender, 2 years; Roger and Jason Myers, 2 years; Donald L. Wilcom, 2 years; Oren Bender, 1 year; Frank and Barbara Covey, 1 year; and John and Donald Skinner, 1 year.

ANNOUNCING A BETTER WAY TO CLEAN YOUR SOIL

VAPAM® AND WATER

SOIL FUMIGANT

Treating your soil with a fumigant helps get your crops off to a better start. But one problem with soil fumigants has been getting even distribution. Until now.

Now, with Vapam soil fumigant and the Hydroflo Cheminjector® pump, you can thoroughly fumigate your soil using your irrigation water. That saves you tedious hours of application, and the water does the work of distributing Vapam uniformly through the soil. You get more complete coverage using less fumigant. Without all that extra labor.

So you'll be able to do an even better job of getting potential problems out of the way before you plant your vegetables. Vapam eliminates verticillium and fusarium wilts and many other soil-borne diseases. And it helps clear the soil of nematodes and many germinating weed seeds. This helps make the job of weed control easier later in the season.

Now you can make better use of your Vapam than ever—at a lower cost than ever. See your Vapam supplier or contact Hydroflo for information on the Cheminjector pump. Follow label directions.

Stauffer Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemical Division, Westport, CT 06881.

The program will start at 9:30 and adjourn at 4:00 p.m. Pre-registration is required by March 7th. The $10 program fee will cover lunch and a notebook of handout materials. Call either the Berks County Extension Office at 215/378-1327 or the Lancaster County Extension Office at 717/394-7951 for reservations.

The in-depth school is designed for feed salesman, equipment salesman, farm builders, veterinarians and pork producers. The information is designed to reduce pig health problems in swine barns, reduce fuel costs, decrease drug usage and reduce time to market by improving existing ventilation systems and incorporating up-to-date information in new buildings.

The all day program will include talks by a veterinarian, three pork producers, county agents and two agricultural engineers. The topics to be discussed include: the importance of good quality air, remodeling ventilation systems, the value of slaughter checks, why ventilation?, principles of ventilation, air inlet and fan sizing, new heat exchanger technology, producer experiences with heat exchangers, natural ventilation design, designing ventilation systems (problem session), and trouble shooting ventilation problems.

Who Got the Best Buy?

Farmer Bob and Farmer Ray bought confinement equipment the very same day!

Farmer Ray thought he had a fantastic bargain — soon he discovered that a bargain product can be far more costly in the long run as everything soon rusted and corroded! Fencing, Nursery Pens, Farrowing Crates, and Gestation Stalls — all now need to be replaced at today's higher costs

Farmer Bob chose Rohn "Hot Dip Galvanized" Agri Products and his equipment is still as good as new. The reason? Zinc is the finish that withstands corrosive elements longer and provides years of carefree, reliable service

There's no doubt about it, Rohn Agri Products are your very "Best Buy"!

Leola stallion tops Pa. Draft Horse and Mule Sale

by Montie Tak
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG – There was plenty of horsepower in Harrisburg last week, sleek, muscled and on the hoof.

Most people today think of horsepower in automotive terms. Those same people would probably consider the 68 draft horses and mules consigned to the Fourth Annual Sale of the Pennsylvania Draft Horse and Mule Association to be anachronisms in a fast-paced world.

But the packed and enthusiastic audience at the Farm Show Complex on February 21 thought differently. And auctioneer Steve Andrews' gavel never had a chance to cool down.

This four-day-old filly by Belgian mare Mountain Side Martha shows that you don't have to weigh a ton to participate in the Draft Horse Sale

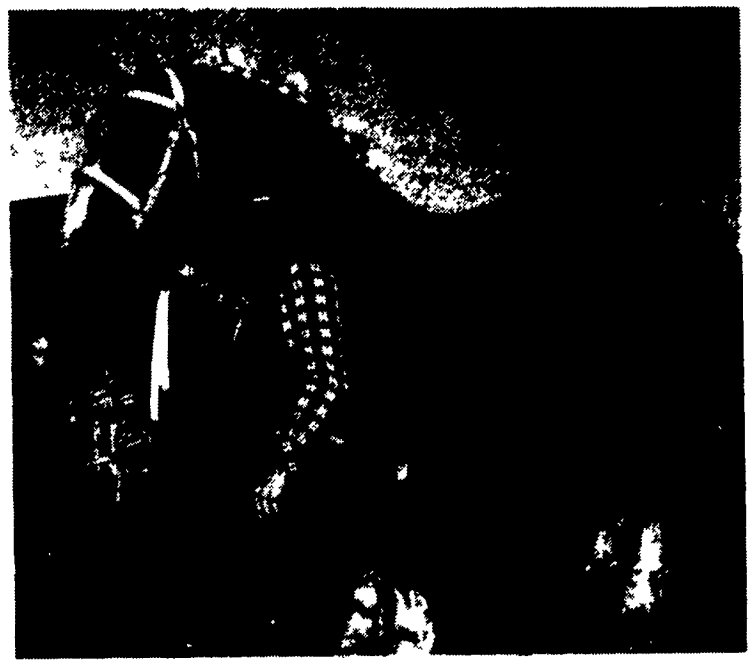
Elmer Lapp, chairman of the sales committee and secretary-treasurer of the Pennsylvania Draft Horse and Mule Association, was well pleased with the sale. "We had a good crowd," notes Lapp. "We had over 2000 catalogs printed and we had non left over."

He says total sales receipts came to $48,000 with the draft animals bringing a total of $42,775 and tack accounting for the balance. "Good used collars were bringing anywhere from $50 to $75," he says.

"Compared to last year, we had more people attending, more people buying, but horse prices were down a little bit. But then we had more colts and fillies than last year. Aged horses sold real good," Lapp noted.

Top-selling horse was Grange's Waterloo Again, a magnificent six-year-old Belgian stallion consigned by Stephen Glick, Leola, Pa., and sold to Howard Collies, Hudson, N.Y. for $2000. A matched team of Belgian mares consigned by Jacob Kanagy, Belleville, Pa. sold for $1800 each and were purchased by Harold Jensen, Copake, N.Y.

The two highest-priced geldings of the sale were consigned by Harold Wagner, Chambersburg, and bought by Charles Grasse, Hilltown, Pa. for $1675 each. Two draft mules consigned by J. Herbert Frantz, Waynesboro, Pa. and purchased by Robert Umboll of Hershey were the highest-priced mules at $900 each.



Grange's Waterloo Again, a six-year-old Belgian stallion consigned by Stephen Glick of Leola, was high-selling animal at the Pa. Draft Horse and Mule Association's 4th Annual Sale.

One consignor was Aden Z. Martin of Ephrata. No stranger to draft mules, Martin says he farmed with them all his life. "Then draft horses began selling pretty good," he recalls. "Mules now, you can't raise any colts."

He says interest in draft animals began when gas became scarce. A number of farmers put away their tractors and went back to horses, especially in the West. When Martin saw the trend, he went to Ohio and bought two mares, one open and one in foal.

"I bought them mostly to raise and sell colts," he says. "The price was still up then but it has dropped in the last two years."

One reason for the fluctuation in the market, says Martin, was the relative scarcity of horses. Horses for slaughter were bringing as much as $500 and $600 at New Holland. In response to the seller's market, everyone started to breed mares, "and that kind of flooded the market. Now only the better horses bring good money. But we're going to hang in there again until the market gets better."

Pa. Holstein breeders convene in Phila.

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA – Pennsylvania Holstein breeders met Thursday and Friday, February 21 and 22, for their 73rd annual convention, hosted here at the Adams Mark Hotel.

Highlights of the business session included the election of two new directors to the executive board, by-laws changes and a number of policy resolutions focusing around the Farm Bill, milk promotion and general ag issues.

State president Sam Minor, a Washington County milk producer and retailer, opened the meeting with his annual address to the membership.

"The most exciting thing happening is milk promotion," Minor told the members, "and in the next six months we must do everything possible to assure passage of the referendum in August."

Dairy farmers across the nation will vote in August on a referendum to continue the 15-cent advertising check-off now in place as part of the diversion program. That mandatory check-off has resulted in a National Dairy Promotion Program budget of $190 million for dairy product promotion, nutrition education and research.

Citing the ag instability created by continuing economic changes and the credit crunch crisis, Minor noted that the State Holstein association remains in a favorable condition, and continues as a member-oriented organization. He noted a swing of emphasis from PHA as a sales-oriented structure to a more service-oriented one, and lauded the volunteer efforts which keep the Holstein organization strong at the grassroots.

Holstein president Sam Minor, center, welcomed two new members to the PHA executive board. Jay Landis, left, of Lancaster, represents the Southcentral district and Walter Wurster Jr., Bucks County, is the Southeast representative.

Multiple-year Progressive Breeder Registry Award winners include: (seated, left) Keith and Deborah Decker, 2 years; Bill Stoltzfus for Willowland Farm, 2 years; Ray Moyer for Robert Junge Farms, 6 years; (standing, left) Wayne Beshore, Beshore Farms, 11 years; Bruce Snider, Singing Brook Farms, 8 years; Dr. John Plummer, for Delaware Valley College, 12 years; Donald Hostetter for Maplebound Farm, 5 years; Donald Seipt, Keystone Farm, 27 years; and Bob Gitt, Penn Gate Farm, 3 years.

In the wake of the discontinuance of the former "Pennsylvania Holstein News" monthly publication, Minor announced the appointment of a committee to "quickly but thoroughly study the need for a news magazine" for the state membership.

That announcement was in keeping with a recommendation of the state's policy development and evaluation committee, to publish a monthly state Holstein publication.

Other policy recommendations suggest making the current "Holstein World" and "Farmshine" publications optional to a membership fee, recognizing promotion efforts at a local level, and recognizing breeders of the winners at cattle shows.

By-laws changes passed at the session now limit state directors to two, three-year terms, after which a term off is required before that individual can serve another series of terms. Executive board vacancies, formerly filled by district caucus vote, will now be filled through voting by the state board, as will changes in membership fee structure.

Before those by-laws passed, two districts caucusing under the previous by-laws elected new representatives to the state's executive board.

Southcentral members elected Jay Landis, Lancaster, while Bucks County dairyman Walter Wurster, Jr., is the new executive member from the Southeast district. The pair fills seats vacated by the expiring board terms of Bob Kauffman, Lancaster, and Sam Acker, Chester County.

A board meeting which ran late into Thursday night resulted in a general resolution passed by the membership on the upcoming Farm Bill legislation. PHA's policy will be to support the con-

Locke, Roth join Pa. Holstein Hall of Fame

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA – H. Wayne Locke and David Roth were inducted into the Pennsylvania Holstein Hall of Fame as the highlight of the banquet which capped the group's 73rd annual convention, hosted at the Adams Mark Hotel.

Locke is a noted Cumberland County Holstein breeder, cattle judge, and lay minister and evangelist for the Church of God.

He quickly gave "credit to the Lord" for his success. Locke and his wife, went to dairying in 1932, breeding their Lockway herd to national recognition during the next 30 years, until their 1972 dispersal. During that three-decade period, Locke bred 25 Excellent cows and had ten bulls go into A.I. industry service.

In 1965, Lockway was named premier breeder at the Harrisburg All-American show, without entering a single animal. In 1964, Locke also handled public relations for the Allen Dairy production and show herd, located near Mechanicsburg.

A PDCA recognized judge for many years, Locked worked closely with young breeders, helping them develop their herds, and served a long stint as a 4-H dairy leader.

Roth, who began dairying in 1928 at his Loysville farm, has been a state dairy industry leader almost since the beginning of his dairy career. His long list of Holstein activities includes state director and executive board member, national delegate, state sale chairman and winner for many years of the Progressive Breeder Registry award.

Associated in the business today with his son, David Roth Jr., Roth's Milmay herd is the oldest registered herd on both classification and DHIA in Perry County. Roth also had the first Excellent cow bred and raised in that county, and today all herd members carry the Milmay prefix.

Roth is a 24-year director of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association, which he has headed as president for 10 years. In 1981, he won the group's prestigious Charles Cowan award for outstanding leadership in Pennsylvania's dairy industry. Names a Master Farmer in 1957, he has also headed that group as president.

Organizer of the Perry County Artificial Breeders Cooperative, Roth later became director and is a past president of the first Pennsylvania Artificial Breeders Cooperative, now Atlantic Breeders. One of the highlights of his breeding cooperative leadership years was the opportunity to purchase for the Pennsylvania A.I. business the now-famed sire, Whirlhill Kingpin.

In addition, Roth has spent many years as a 4-H leader and county Farmers' Association president. He helped form the first Soil Conservation District in Perry County, and in 1961 won recognition from the Soil Conservation Society of America.

He's a local and district leader of the Three Springs Church of the Brethren, and a 39-year member of the Lions club. With his wife, Ruth, Roth has led seven agricultural study trips abroad for the People-to-People organization.

Portraits of Locke and Roth will join those of other state Holstein pioneers and leaders in the Hall of Fame gallery, located in the state Holstein Association office at State College.

Also honored during the banquet was Holstein Association executive secretary Bill Nichol, observing his 25th anniversary with the state's largest cattle breed organization. Nichol and his wife, Lily, were presented a handsome wall clock in recognition of his quarter-century of service to the Holstein industry.

Perry County breeder David Roth, center, was named to the Pa. Holstein Hall of Fame during ceremonies at the state convention banquet. Joining Roth were his wife, Ruth, and Hall of Fame chairman Walter Wurster Jr.

Wayne Locke, Cumberland County breeder, cattle judge and minister, was inducted into the Holstein Association's Hall of Fame. Locke and his wife, Mildred, received congratulations from president Sam Minor, right.

Pa. Holstein Assoc. executive secretary Bill Nichol and his wife, Lily, were presented a handsome clock in honor of his 25th anniversary with the PHA. Making the presentation was past president Bill Conyingham, right.

Perry juniors triumph in dairy bowl at PHA awards breakfast

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA — A former professional football coach and the popular senior dairy bowl finals kept the program lively at the Hostein convention's annual Awards Breakfast, held February 22 in the ballroom of the Adams Mark Hotel.

Dick Vermeil, former coach of the Philadelphis Eagles, is now a television sports color commentator and owner of registered Holsteins. He grew up in the Napa Valley wine country of California and presently owns part of the former King Ranch in the Brandywine Conservancy, a private preserve of rolling Chester County farmland.

Vermeil labeled successful people as people who get what they want.

"The greatest power is the power of choice," is Vermeil's philosophy for both football players and dairymen, and individuals choose whether they will face life's choices with a positive or a negative outlook.

His players were never allowed to be underachievers, Vermeil told the several hundred Holstein adults and youth gathered for the early bird session, and good attitudes will equal the level of motivation seen in an individual.

Following Vermeil's presentation, attention swung to the two finalist teams in the Holstein Association's increasingly popular Dairy Bowl contest. From a field of seven teams, Berks and Perry County entries had battled to this final runoff, in a contest run by the Dairy Science department of Delaware Valley College.

Team members from Perry were captain Kim Kreibel, Danny Albright, Jenny Kreibel and Judy Kreibel. Berks' contenders were captain Connie Ohlinger, Scott Troutman, William Lesher and Sandy Moser.

Although the two tied by the end of the first round of individual questions, Perry County proved faster on the button in the toss-up round. For the second consecutive year, Perry's team will now represent Pennsylvania in national Holstein dairy bowl competition, scheduled for the Association's 100th convention during June, in Hartford, Connecticut.

Also recognized at the breakfast was the winning junior division team from Washington-Greene counties. Members were Robbie Vettorel, Justin McMurray, Joseph Barchiesi and Gina Barchiesi.

Former Philadelphia Eagles coach Dick Vermeil shared his philosophies on winning with Holstein breeders and guests attending the awards breakfast at the PHA state convention.

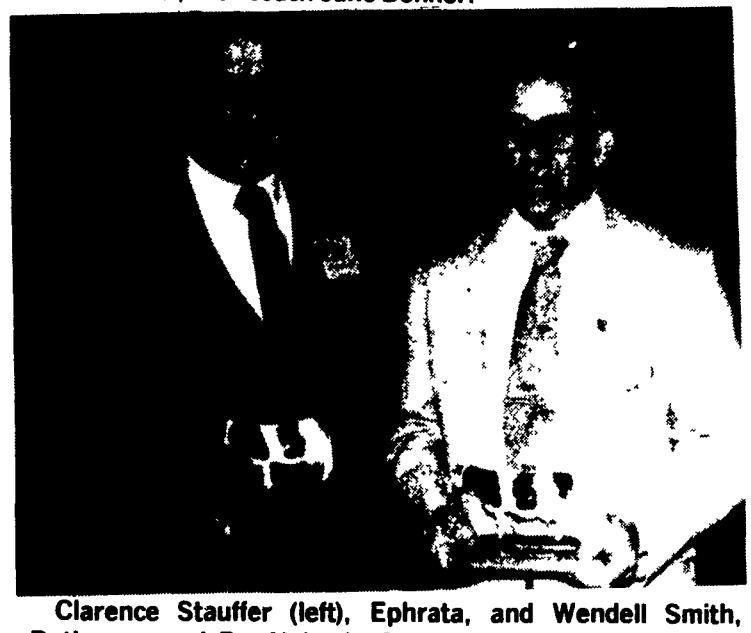
Runner-up in the junior division contest was the York County entry of Rich Bupp, Jenelle Boyer, Diane Lange and Tim Warner.

Two of the state's local clubs met their membership goal by the January 22 deadline and took home $200 goal checks for their local treasury. Clarion-Venango chairman was Clifford Snyder, and Samuel Metz headed membership for Juniata County,

Seventeen individual members earned recognition for membership recruiting, with three bringing in ten or more. Top, with eleven sign-ups, was Wendell Smith, Butler. Roger Latuch, Somerset, and Clarence Stauffer, Ephrata, each acquired ten membership sign-ups.

Recognition for five or more new members went to: William Hunsberger, Davidsville; Clifford Snyder, Parker; Jerry Fleck, Schnecksville; Ray McMillen, Loysville, Robert Lentz, Lebanon; and Adam Lobaugh, Aspers.

Also, Ronald Mummah, Port Royal; John Gilliland, Warriors Mark; David Spicher, Belleville; Dennis Wolfe, Milton; Daniel Will, Berlin George Cashell, St. Thomas; Dennis Smoker, Genesse; and Lawrence Neely, Jr. Emlenton.



Clarence Stauffer (left), Ephrata, and Wendell Smith, Butler, earned Pa. Holstein Assoc. plaudits for signing up members during 1984. Smith brought in 11 new members, while Stauffer was responsible for 10.

cept of a "fair and equitable supply management system" for milk production, geared to consumer demand and reasonable producer profit, due to the continuing national surplus of milk and decreasing profitability for the producer.

To further look at one successful production management program, Holstein staffers are hoping to line up a Canadian speaker for the upcoming March 4-8 Holstein breeders' seminars, with background on how that country's milk production quota system operates.

Other dairy-related resolutions lent support to the August advertising referendum vote, legislation to require proper labeling for imitation foods and controls on imports of completely subsidized products, along with refusal to accept products below domestic health standards.

General resolutions focused on support for state and federal research on alternate waste disposal methods for organic, including manure, and inorganic solid wastes, allocation of state monies to develop a rabies eradication program, and an anti-litter enforcement program aligned with bottle deposit legislation.

Speaker for the business session wrap-up was A.E. "Toney" Mazur, New Jersey native of a Vineland poultry and vegetable farm, now associated with several Philadelphia area universities. His "Success Comes in Cans" presentation dealt with facing life with the positive "I know I can" approach in attitude, direction and discipline.

Wagners maintain high-producing Schuylkill herd

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

TAMAQUA — Can a herd that is housed in an older, stanchion barn, milked with bucket milkers, and fed twice a day achieve top production? Can owners with a dairy store, jugging plant, a delivery truck on the road daily, and more than 300 acres to farm, in addition to the dairy herd, keep tabs on high production?

The answer is yes to all the above. It's a formula that keeps Paul and Ken Wagner, R1, Tamaqua, busy, but has proven successful to these two Schuylkill County brothers. The 1984 Schuylkill County DHIA roll listed the Wagner herd at the top for milk production with their herd average of 20,441 pounds milk.

"We've always been in the top ten in the county," Ken Wagner admits. He adds that butterfat and protein is watched closely in the herd too, as their yearly averages in these two areas placed them second in the county. Butterfat average for the herd was 785 pounds and the protein production average stood at 653 pounds.

Yet another ingredient in this operation is simplicity. The dairy store/jugging plant is a modest block building with milk and milk products predominant in the store. The dairy case covers the back wall, as cookies and soda products take an obvious back seat to "nature's most perfect drink."

Joan, wife of Ken Wagner, tends the store and greets each customer with a smile. The openness of the store leaves the way clear for patrons as they return their "empties" and head for the dairy case to fill up their carriers.

Wagner milk is packaged in glass, the best way to store milk according to the Wagners. "It still tastes better in glass," states Ken Wagner. "It stays fresher, and has no after-taste," he adds. "It keeps its good flavor and richness."

Wagners Dairy Store has been in operation for 13 years, and customers have come to rely on the constant freshness and high quality of the Wagner's milk. A delivery truck is also used by the Wagners for the convenience of distant or shut-in patrons.

"There's more income by doing (processing and selling) it yourself, but it ties you down more too," says Ken Wagner. Both families have a strong commitment to the success of an efficient, profitable, dairy operation.

"It's management," sums up Wagner about their dairy farm and store. With Ken managing the store and delivery route, in addition to doing much of the repair work and field work, Paul cares for the more than 60, high producing Holsteins and oversees the milk processing and packaging.

Featuring "a lot of Ivanhoes," the Wagner herd is housed in tie stalls and milked with bucket milkers. "You can do a better job milking with the buckets," Wagner relates. "There is a more constant vacuum."

Milk goes from the dumping station directly into a refrigerated truck with a 300 gallon tank. Milk is taken to the processing part of the store twice a day where Paul Wagner oversees the packaging after he has finished caring for the herd. Three additional employees are used to maintain a smooth operation. Quality is monitored by the Wagners from the production of feed for the dairy herd, through the barns, to the dairy store, where the final product goes to the consumer.

The cows are fed a total mixed ration twice a day. Agri-King assists in formulating a balanced ration for this herd. "It's expensive, but we're getting that top production," Wagner admits.

Currently roasted soybeans are used as the concentrate with good results. "It (soybeans) seems to be doing a good job," Wagner says.

Cottonseed is used in the mix for the high producers because of the high fiber and fat content. With animals peaking over 120 pounds and average butterfat tests over four percent, Wagner is well pleased. "It helps keep their test up," he adds. The last three averages for butterfat on their DHIA monthly reports were at or over 4.1 percent.

Much of the high production and test, Wagner credits to good breeding. "We always had good breeding," he says. From the time when his father bought breeding stock from Wisconsin until today, Wagner animals have always been bred to the "top of the list."

Cows and heifers are all bred A.I. by Craig Wagner, Paul's son. "You can get better cows," Wagner concludes without hesitation.

After a cow freshens, close attention is paid to the calves. They are raised in the stall barn for two weeks, "so we can watch them better," Wagner adds. Older calves are then grouped in an outside shed until six months of age.

Heifers, raised in an open shed, receive "no special ration," just good quality corn silage, grain and hay, according to Wagner.

Although the Wagners enjoy the older methods of operation that have proved so successful for them, they also appreciate new ideas. Last year perennial rye grass was planted on 35 acres with alfalfa to put in the silo for haylage. Good results were experienced with ten pounds per acre to 18 pounds alfalfa.

"I think I'll try some more of it," Wagner says, but adds that he will reduce application of rye grass to seven pounds per acre, because of the thick growth.

Sealed storage is also utilized in this operation. A 25x80 stores haylage and a 20x50 structure stores high moisture shelled corn. Conventional storage is taken care of by three other silos.

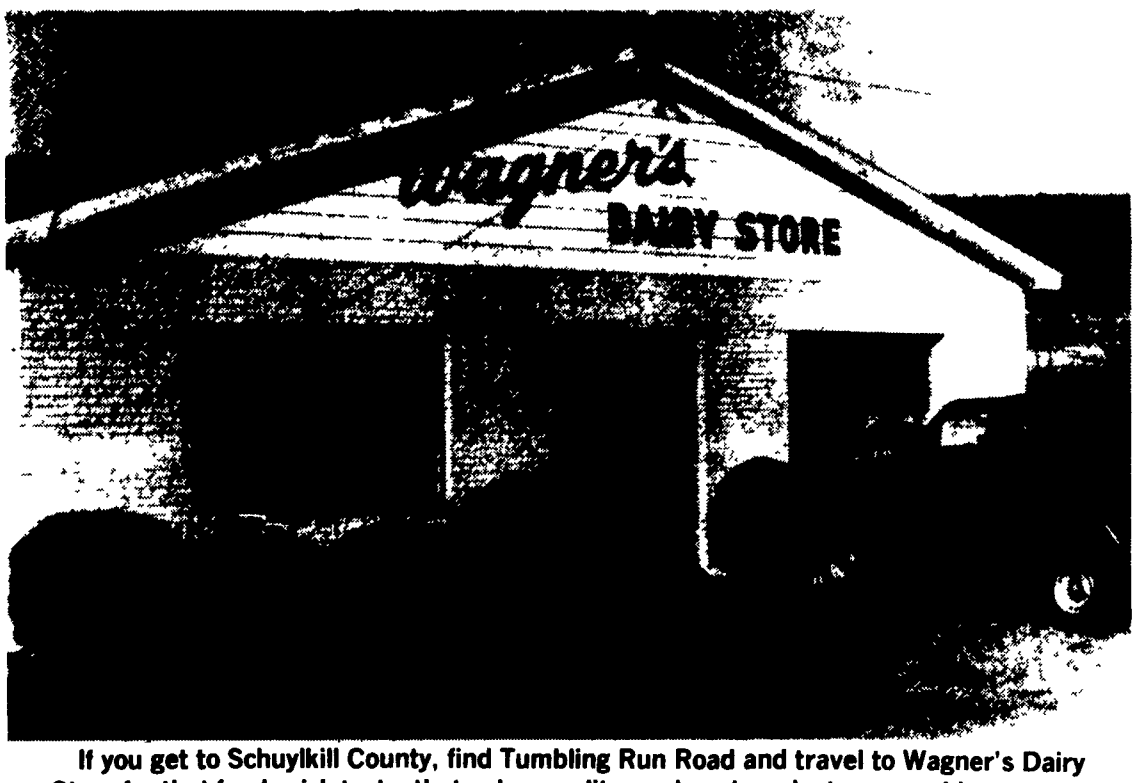
Most repair work is done by the Wagners themselves as they try to hold down repair costs.

Summarizing the success of the Wagner operation, Ken Wagner states, "It's good breeding, TMR, and close management." With cows averaging over 20,000 pounds, and over 300 acres to harvest the highest quality feeds possible, Wagner concludes that one of the biggest "secrets" to success is "management."

Joan Wagner shows the ribbons the herd has been awarded for their high milk and fat production. The ribbons are displayed in the dairy store.

A top producing cow in the Wagner herd is "Snowball." Ken Wagner trys to get her attention as he states her recent production figures of 95 pounds milk with a 4.5 percent test.

The milk case is the dominant item in the store. A promotional cow hangs overhead.



If you get to Schuylkill County, find Tumbling Run Road and travel to Wagner's Dairy Store for that fresh, rich taste, that only a quality produced product can provide.

Linear type appraisal meeting planned

EARLEVILLE, Md. – Cecil County Holstein Association will hold a special barn meeting on Friday, March 8, at 7:30 p.m. to discuss "Linear Type Appraisal."

Patsy Gifford, Holstein classifier, will conduct the meeting and demonstration on live animals. The new area consultant will also be in attendance.

The meeting will be held at PIONEER VALLEY FARM (George and Ron Underwood) on Dr. Miller Road, North East, Maryland.

If you want further information or specific directions to Pioneer Valley Farm, call Ewing McDowell at 301-658-6423.

Draft horses

Martin admits the current market may have a good effect in the longrun, and he maintains the good quality horses will stay. He mentions a Belgian mare that recently sold for $10,000 at the three-day draft horse sales in Columbus, Ohio. Someday he hopes to sell his horses in Ohio, where as many as 600 head are consigned and buyers and sellers come from all over the nation.

He points out a local preference for the Belgian breed. "Why, I don't know. If you talk to a Percheron man, he'll tell you differently." Belgians, he feels, are a better-selling horse. And there's the esthetic side, too. "You have a copper-colored Belgian with a flaxen mane and tail, then you have something."

Martin says he has seen a lot of changes at the Harrisburg sale since the first year it was held. He says there is more registered stock this year and recalls there were mostly grade horses at the first sale.

"If you get the top quality–not just blooodlines, but conformation--you can get a good price," he concludes.

It's a long way to the top of a Belgian mare. Todd and Jennifer Biddle of Boalsburg, prepare Roxanne Bush Creek Farceur for the show ring.

Butler Holstein Club honors youth

BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

MERIDIAN — Butler County Holstein youth were recognized for their achievements at the Holstein Club's annual banquet on Feb. 16.

Lona Rader, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Rader, Connoquenessing, was named the county's Outstanding Holstein Girl by youth chairman Norman Graham. Lona has been a member of the Butler County Dairy Club for eight years and was the first member to receive the club's Outstanding Junior Member award in 1982. Lona owns three registered Holsteins, two of which she has bred. She is also a member of the Junior Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

During a report of last year's 4-H experiences, Lona said, "It was my first year for my Holstein to make it to Harrisburg and I was the breeder standing in the top half of the class."

Lona was also among the Holstein youth honored for high milk and fat records. Her five year two month record on Rader Bootmakers Lucille producted 20,534 pounds milk and 797 pounds fat, winning the five years and over class.

Jackie Reno, Valencia, was second in this age group with a record from Renault Joy Exception Jackie's of 16,479 pounds milk and 607 pounds fat on 305 days made at six years one month.

Top honors in the four-year-old class went to two boys. Harold Rader Jr. won the milk contest with 21,398 pounds and a second in fat with 721 pounds on the four year four month record of Neely-Farms Topper Cotton on 305 days.

Gary Wible's 770-pounds of fat that Wible Farm Pete Abby made overtook the fat while she produced 20,485 pounds of milk in 305 days also on a four year four month age.

John Reno was the sole winner in the three-year-old class. Renault Marsha Joby Melinda, at three years one month, produced 14,072 pounds milk, 4.3 test and 607 fat. He also took second place for milk in the two-year-old class. Renault Marsha Bootleg Mary produced 12,805 pounds milk at two years one month in 304 days.

Youth chairman Norman Graham presents trophy and congratulations to Butler County Outstanding Holstein Girl, Lona Rader.

Youth milk and fat record winners at the Butler County Holstein Banquet receive congratulations from youth chairman Norman Graham. From left, sitting, are Harold Rader Jr., Heather Leslie and Gary Wible. Standing from left are Norman Graham, Jackie and John Reno and Lona Rader.

The two-year-old milk and fat winner was Heather Leslie's Connoq Andy Patty, who in 305 days made 15,030 pounds milk and 597 pounds fat at two years six months. Second in fat was John's sister, Jackie, who made 476 pounds of butterfat. Her completed two-year-old record was 11,500 pounds milk in 305 days by Renault Joy Gay Jodie.

A junior club is being formed in the county and Norman Graham encouraged interested youth to contact him soon about the club.

Election results reinstated Norman Graham and Ken Scheidemantle for three year terms in their positions. Graham is vice president and Scheidemantle is sale chairman. Officers remained the same with George Dean, president; John Rame secretary-treasurer; Wendell Smith, membership; Lee Kummer, state representative; and Leroy Hogg and Bradley Cooper, co-chairmen of the Western Pa. Sale of Stars.

Duane Hartzell, area representative on the state's Federal Order of 36, spoke on the adverstising campaign and explained the voting procedure of the Ask-Out on money going to promotion that the dairy farmers will be taking action on in March.

State Representative Lee Kummer updated changes made within the state club that will occur at the state convention along with other concerns of the local club. Next year's convention, hosted by the western breeders, he said, will be held at the Pittsburgh Convention Center.

Ken Raney, Pa. Holstein staff member, recognized membership chairman Wendell Smith for his efforts. "His name has been at the top of the list every year, either as reaching the membership goal on time or by initiating new members as again he has achieved 11 new members this year."

All Pennsylvania Holstein Annuals are out now, he said, and due to the cost of the news magazine it has been discontinued. Seventy percent of the magazine's revenue came from breeder's advertising, so another route is now being investigated.

Plans for the club's annual tour to Somerset County this year and the twilight meeting to be at Marburger Farm Dairy are being finalized. More information will be available at a later date.

Experts talk about cows, milk, and people

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

Leesport — The auditorium was filled recently as Berks County dairymen took a day off for the annual Berks County Dairy Day. Held at the Berks County Agricultural Center, Leesport, Dairy Day featured Penn State Extension personnel, an area veterinarian, and a representative from the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Advisory Board.

Commercial exhibits from local businesses were also on display as dairymen enjoyed updates on "Heifer and Cow Nutrition," "Causes of Milkfat Test Variations and Depressions," "Nutrition Economics," "Milk Flavor and Composition," "Water Quality Problems," and "Current On The Farm Problems."

Dr. Dennis Hoshall, Oley Valley veterinarian, summed up the current problems on the farm with, "I know you are up against the wall financially, but you need time to look at your herd.

"Don't neglect the things at home," Hoshall advised, "Tighten up general management."

According to what he is seeing on dairy farms, too many dairymen are cutting corners where they shouldn't be. "When economics get a little tighter, people are more prone to the quick fix solution," Hoshall warned. "Look at your whole program."

He went on to point out the many management practices that have been proven worthwhile and worth continuing. They are: 1. Teat dipping; 2. Dry treating; 3. The use of disposable paper towels; 4. A calving interval between 12.5 or 13.5 or lower; 5. Monthly herd-checks; 6. Lepto vaccinations; 7. Colostrum to calves right after birth; 8. Deworming heifers several times before freshening; 9. Breeding heifers to calve at two years of age.

"It does not help to skip small details," he stated. "These things aren't the place to save money," he concluded.

Clyde Myers, Berks County extension agent, presented the results of the calf and heifer growth survey that was conducted in Berks County last year. Fifteen herds and 319 heifers were measured. Height and weight were recorded and compared to a growth curve for that breed from previous research data.

"Berks County is better than most," Myers pointed out, but he added that there is still much improvement needed in calf and heifer nutrition and facilities on many farms.

The first social groups present the most problems according to Myers and the data collected. "This group needs to be under five animals," Myers explained. The first social group refers to the age period when calves are taken out of their individual housing and thrown together with others of the same age or size. He also encouraged dairymen to remember those heifers and their nutritional needs.

"Develop a heifer raising plan of action," Myers advised. Growth periods should be divided into segments, and housing, nutrition, and health programs should be planned for each group.

Dick Adams, PSU extension dairy nutritionist, discussed the nutritional research and findings for heifers and cows. He also highlighted nutrition economics.

Water quality and milk production was also compared by Adams. "Measure the intake," he advised. Low water intakes are caused by many factors that can be corrected by the dairyman. "Stray voltage has a pronounced effect," Adams stated. In his research he also found that four out of six farms tested had bacterial contamination; dirt, fecal contamination, etc.

A water quality study will be

Inter-State District 7 honors 25-year members

MOUNT JOY — Two Lancaster County farm families were recognized for 25 years of membership in Inter-State Milk Cooperative at a recent Inter-State District 7 meeting.

Earl and Evie Landis of Manheim accepted a plaque and certificate recognizing the Landis family for 25 years of service to Inter-State. They manage a herd of 55 Holsteins.

Gerald and Carolyn Martin of Ephrata also received recognition for their family's 25 years with Inter-State. The Martin's milk 52 Holsteins.

In an address to the members Inter-State General Manager Dr. Paul Hand looked at a number of issues that will confront dairymen in the near future. Hand expressed Inter-State's support of the milk promotion program and for the continuation of the 15-cent checkoff which comes up for a vote in August.

He noted that the increase in promotion efforts has helped contribute to strong demand and sales. The ads have helped milk's image in the consumers' eyes, he said.

Inter-State is also assessing the possible consequences of the end of the dairy diversion program in April. Hand said that although the 50 cent assessment will end with the dairy diversion program, the support price will probably drop 50 cents, resulting in little or no change in producer income. The support price could drop another 50 cents in July, he said, but added that the market should be strong enough to at least partially offset that drop.

Inter-State is also closely watching farm legislation in 1985, a year which Hand described as pivotal. At this time, he continued, Inter-State has no sympathy for the current administration's programs.

Inter-State will be carefully following the development of the new Farm Bill, Hand said, and advocates a "safety-net price support program," that would protect the support price from sudden drops.

Hand also devoted a few minutes to explaining the role of the Holly Milk plant in Inter-State's organization. Although the plant typically operates at a loss, he explained, it is an essential part of the co-op, handling close to a third of the co-op's milk at busy times and sometimes less than 10 percent at slower times. Hand said the plant will continue to play a "balancing role" for the co-op.

Earl and Evie Landis, Manheim, and Gerald and Carolyn Martin, Ephrata, were recognized for their families' 25 years of membership with Inter-State Milk Cooperative at the recent District 7 annual meeting in Mt. Joy.

The group also elected new officers and delegates for locals within the district. In the Donegal local, the new officers are Luke Brubaker, president; Marvin Nissley, vice-president; and Preston Newcomer, secretary-treasurer. E. Richard Bruckhart and Donald Hershey were elected to the hauling committee. Delegates are Galen Benner and Henry Shellenberger and alternate delegates are Earl Landis and Paul Sauder.

In the Lititz local Clyde Buchen was elected president; Lynn Royer, vice president; and Dale Hershey, secretary-treasurer. Delegates are Galen Crouse and Richard Kreider, and alternate delegates are Kenneth Stoner and James Zimmerman. Ray Bollinger was elected to the hauling committee.

New Lebanon local officers are Arthur Brandt, president; Howard Kopp, vice president; and Nelson Martin, secretary-treasurer. J. Calvin Zimmerman is delegate and Donald Bomberger, alternate delegate.

The dollar and ag trade

Farm income, he added, has dropped by a third since 1979.

The overall economy, he added, is not as strong as the Reagan Administration would like us to believe. Nor is it as weak as was feared last fall, when some economists spoke gloomily about the possibility of another recession.

"The underlying growth rate was probably closer to the average of the two, or somewhat above 3 percent," he said. He added, however, that he expected the economic expansion to continue at least through the end of the year, with inflation remaining under control as well.

He termed President Reagan's budget-cutting proposals, "a helpful first step," added his doubts that Congress would enact all the cuts the administration has asked for.

The deficit, Heebner said, will continue to rise on its own, above its current $200 billion level, unless "policy changes" are made to cut programs that currently receive federal funding.

In remarks directed specifically at the agricultural economy, Penn State agricultural economist H. Louis Moore repeated Heebner's assertion that the current recovery essentially had "passed by" the farm sector.

Concluding that he was cautiously optimistic about the future of agriculture, Moore recited a litany of problems that plague the farm economy, including weather, poor export opportunities, declining land values, new lending policies, surpluses, declining political clout, the end of the dairy diversion program, the 1985 Farm Bill and the continuing growth of large agribusiness conglomerates.

He also commented on a number of specific farm products and issues:

- Hogs: "You're going to see fewer and larger operations." Hog numbers will continue to decline, but there will be more and more Canadian competition.
- Livestock producers: "It's going to be a better year for the livestock industry because feed costs are down" and prices appear to be on the rise.
- Dairy production: Because of the continuing surplus and constant problems with price, "we may lose a third of our dairy farmers."

Despite all the problems, Moore added, the average American consumer owes a lot to his country cousin. The amount of disposable income the average consumer spends on food, he said, has dropped from a 20-percent level in 1960 to 14.7 percent today.

Tillage Conference

too short," he added, pointing to the administration's strategy of having target prices meet loan rates within three years. Myers suggested that lengthening this time frame might make the program more feasible.

"Practically speaking, though, we may just get an extension of the present farm bill for another year," said Myers, pointing out that such complex legislation may be a long time coming.

But one problem that can't wait another year for affirmative action, according to Penn State soil scientist Dr. Dale Baker, is the buildup of nutrients in our soil and water.

"The Chesapeake Bay is important, but Pennsylvania agriculture is important, too," said Baker pointing to contaminated wells and the unacceptable buildup of phosphorus and potassium on cropland as examples of poor nutrient management. Some Lancaster County fields contain 1,000 pounds of phosphorus per acre when 60 pounds is adequate, he said.

"We have some farmers in Lancaster County who need to sell all their manure and just add some nitrogen," he observed.

Baker urged farmers to limit the total nutrients to that amount required to grow crops. Discussing outlets for the county's excess manure, Baker suggested that methane digestion and incineration would help to alleviate the problem. "I'm going to predict today that we'll be mixing manure with other wastes and burning it in the future," he said.

Also on the program was county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service director Ray Brubaker, who outlined the ASCS cost-share program for no-till farming.

Pointing out that the program's aim is to introduce no-till farming to those who have not used it, Brubaker noted that farmers who have no-tilled within the past three years are not eligible for funds. To qualify, planting must be done directly into sod, crop residue, or a cover crop, and no chiseling or disking is permitted prior to planting.

A protective cover must be maintained on the soil throughout the winter.

The cost-share rate will be $8 per acre, with a 30-acre limit per farm. The sign-up period for the 1985 planting season ends April 17.

Also included in the day's program was the Lancaster District's conservation tillage specialist Gerald Heistand, presenting the results of last year's comparison plots. Heistand noted that for test plots with no serious management problems, conventional tillage logged a slight yield advantage over no-till methods. But he cautioned farmers that higher yields don't necessarily result in increased profits.

Quoting figures from a University of Wisconsin study, Heistand pointed out that while seed and nitrogen costs were higher for no-tillage plots, no-till procedures reduced the cost of equipment and labor significantly.

Advice on cover crops was provided by John D. Hauck of Chevron Chemical Company, one of the Tillage Conference's sponsors, and a panel discussion by several experienced no-till farmers brought the afternoon session to a close.

done by Clyde Myers and Judy Stoudt, Berks County extension, throughout Berks County. Fifty dairy farms will be checked at random and water quality will be charted.

Sid Barnard, PSU extension food scientist, continued the day's program with his discussions on milkfat tests and milk composition and flavor.

He started out by praising the dairymen. "You're doing a top-notch job of keeping antibiotics out of milk," he stated. About 2000ths of one percent, or two out of every 10,000 dairies have had problems. "But you still have a big jump," he added. "Regulations say absolutely none."

In 1984, Barnard conducted a survey on milk quality and flavor. A big problem, according to Barnard, was the temperature it was stored at in the stores. "Your milk has to be under 40 degrees; my belief is that milk in stores should also be under 40 degrees." Eleven percent of places checked were found to be over 45 degrees.

"An area I feel that there are real problems is flavor," he continued. "Our concern should be for the children in schools." "They just know if they like it or don't like it," he said. Out of 673 samples tested for flavor, 28.9% tested poor, and of the poor samples, 68% were rancid.

According to Barnard, rancidity starts on the farms. Dairymen should watch their handling and cooling procedures. "We don't need any milk out there that doesn't taste good," he concluded.

Donald Duncan, R1, Robesonia, representing the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Advisory Baord, brought farmers up to date on current legislation, advertising expenditures, and plans.

He introduced the new logos for Pennsylvania dairy promotions — "Make It Milk" and "Pennsylvania Dairy Country."

"We want to get it (the logo) known for a quality product," he stated.

He also reminded dairymen that March 15th is the deadline for applications from organizations requesting funds. "We're going to try to do more," he stated. The board will not fund capital investments, radio ads, dairy princess pageants, or travel expenses. "We're hoping the local groups come up with some new and different ideas," he added.

The Board is currently financing a blood serum - cholesterol level research project. "I think we're going to come up with some very positive figures on this," Duncan stated.

They are also developing milk truck logo's for consumers to identify the large, shiny milk trucks on the road. "It's some very cheap advertising," Duncan said.

Other plans include a Pennsylvania Dairy Recipe Contest with a grand prize of $1,000.00, signs to be placed along highways, and a study to determine how effective current advertising is.

"I'm afraid that Americans are probably drinking their fill of beverages," Duncan warned. "It's up to the American farmer to take some away and have them put in milk," he concluded.

Resale pricing committee elects chairman

HARRISBURG — Members of the Joint Study Committee on Resale Pricing elected Rep. Carmel Sirianni chairman at their first meeting on Wednesday in Harrisburg.

Sirannı, Hop Bottom, currently serves as minority chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee.

The new study committee was formed to study resale pricing of milk when the General Assembly was considering Sunset legislation dealing with the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board and the state's Milk Marketing Law late last year.

The committee, made up of consumers, milk dealers and producers, and the majority and minority chairmen of the House and Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committees, called on an advisory committee to provide them with the information they need to decide the future of mandatory milk pricing in Pennsylvania.

The advisory committee assigned to assist the study committee consists of the chairman of the Milk Marketing Board, the Penn State's dean of agriculture, the dean of the Wharton School of Business and their staffs.

The study committee has scheduled their next meeting for Thursday, May 2.

Mary Grimm approaches Extension work with enthusiasm

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

EAST BERLIN — To say that Mary Grim is enthusiastic about Penn State's Cooperative Extension Service is an understatement. Although her involvement with Extension is short in terms of years, her commitment couldn't be deeper.

Mary, a homemaker and mother of two from East Berlin, is completing a two-year term as president of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations, a statewide group of representatives from Extension services in each region. This group of lay people advises, assists and works for the betterment of the Extension Service, an arm of Penn State.

Mary's first direct involvement with Penn State's Extension Service came nine years ago when she was asked to join a homemaker's group which was organizing in East Berlin. She joined, took her turn at being a leader and eventually became a member of the Family Living Advisory Council, a group which helped home economist Helen Tunison plan programs.

From there her name was nominated for election to the Adams County Executive Committee. She got two surprises-first of all, she was elected, and secondly she found out that it was a working board. Mary explained that local executive committees oversee the county Extension program "financially and programatically."

Mary is not a likely pioneer or feminist, but she was the only woman to serve with six men on that county board. She went on to become the group's first woman president, and then became the first woman president of PCCEA. Her impact in that position has been felt widely.

She explains her feelings about the Extension program. "What amazes me is the variety of services they offer. Anybody with any problem can go to them. It's not just for farmers and 4-H'ers, but for homeowners and people with good stamps. You can really get help on anything from aphids to zucchini."

Mary is especially proud of the role the state group plays, and is proud that the Penn State Administration recognizes their group as a viable organization which does have a say in what's going on. "We're very lucky in Pennsylvania," Mary states. "They are very willing and want to hear. We do not always agree, but we reach compromise. Sometimes it is just a matter of us not using the same language.

"Public awareness is so important. Extension is a true grass roots program-the University doesn't dictate. They want to know what we want so they can provide resources and information."

The strength of Extension, according to Mary, "has always been its ability to change. They teach people to be self-sufficient."Extension is the largest informal educational system in the country, reaching nearly three million people in Pennsylvania alone.

She pointed out that county executive committees "are very ordinary people. They are dairy farmers and homemakers who can really tell the administration what is useful to them."

The Cooperative Extension Service is a true grass roots organization, Mary explains, saying their services are available to anyone. Here she talks to a neighbor, Nadine Kroft, about the programs offered through Adams County's Extension office.

The county executive committees send representatives to regional committees which have representation on the PCCEA, and it is in this way that the advisory process works. Mary remarks, "We support the total land-grand system-resident instruction, extension and research."

Although Mary now chats easily about the legislative process, state budgets, number of staff and numbers of people reached by Extension service programs, it was not always so. She credits her natural inquisitiveness with helping her learn. "It was a necessity to become informed." But she adds, "Sometimes the answers or solutions seem so simple you think maybe it is not right to speak up." she says she received much encouragement in her learning process.

One of the jobs of PCCEA is to work with the legislature in setting monies appropriated for the Extension service as part of the state budget. Mary says candidly, "Extension is really your tax dollars at work. Everybody is entitled to service."

Mary explains that the "cooperative" part of the Extension service comes because funds come from the federal, state and local governments. The 47 percent from federal funds and 28 percent from state funds goes for salaries and state operating costs. The approximate 18 percent from county funds is for local operating costs and for funding certain county programs. It is for this reason that good relationships must be built at all levels of government.

Mary spends a lot of time talking on the telephone in her work as president of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations. Here she makes notes in the kitchen of her East Berlin Home in Adams County.

Because of the dedication and hard work of the lay people, legislators in Harrisburg and Washington now understand what the Extension service is. Last year the PCCEA asked for, and received, $1.9 million for computers for each of the 67 county offices. It was not easy, but when the item was dropped from the original appropriations bill Mary said members of the state group got on the phone and began calling legislators. "When that happens it is really taxpayers saying this is something that I want to see in the budget. We really have a pipeline to voters in their district. Extension is just as alive in center city-Philadlephis as in the smallest rural county."

The group came armed with facts and figures when they met with the legislators in Harrisburg last week. They had a great big thank-you for last year's appropriations, plus information on how the computers are being used to help all citizens. They also had a $700,000 budget request to provide the telecommunication hook-up plus training and other support to make the computers as effective as possible. At the annual legislative dinner, there were computers available to show their many uses. "The legislators were really interested," according to Mary.

In her spare time, which is very little during her term as president of PCCEA, Mary enjoys doing some crafts. Here she adjusts the decoration on the front door of her home. She also enjoys cooking and baking for her family.

She points out, "Computers will never replace a staff person, but they will let the staff work more efficiently and offer more up-to-date information." With the proper hook-ups some information can be sent instantaneously.

For Mary her experiences on the various levels of the extension boards have provided an opportunity for personal growth. She contends that she was the kind of kid who could not give an oral report in class without being physically sick. Although she still gets nervous when she speaks in front of a group, she can be effective because of the strength of her convictions. And because of her convictions. And becauses of her position, she travels throughout Pennsylvania as well as representing Pennsylvania on the Northeast States Citizens Advisory Council, the National Extension Advisory Council and the Council on Ag Research, Extension and Teaching. She has become an articulate, persuasive, informed spokesman for the Extension service.

She says, only partially joking, "There should be adult 4-H. You can see people gaining confidence as they become adult volunteer leaders in extension."

She credits her family for their complete supportiveness. Her children, Kathleen, 13, and Daniel, 11, are deeply involved in 4-H and are often called upon to travel with their mother to read maps and keep her company. She says, "They are my critics. They tell me when I use my hands too much or when I repeat myself." Her husband, Mike, is policeman in the town of East Berlin, and also offers his support as she travels extensively in her work. She feels comfortable involving her family, neighbors and relatives in her work because "Extension is family oriented."

Both she and Mike are 4-H leaders because, she says, "I want to keep my children interested. 4-H is really confidence building and helps kids develop a lot more self-confidence and gives them a sense of responsibility. 4-H teaches you how to win successfully and how to lose with grace."

She mentions that all family members must be polite when they answer the phone because they never know if it might be the Dean of the College of Agriculture or a legislator. Mary is a great supporter of Adams County and its fine agricultural products, taking apples, sparkling cider and other home-grown goodies with her when she travels. If she's going to Washington, then she switches gears and becomes a promoter of Pennsylvania products and takes Pennsylvania grown products for fellowship hours.

This outgoing part of her nature has helped Mary gain many friends throughout the state and throughout the nation. She said she feels she can travel anywhere and find a friend through her Extension contacts.

It is hard to believe that she has time for any other activities, but Mary also works part time for a Certified Public Accountant, serves on the board of the Office of the Aging, helped found the East Berlin Community Library, is a member of the auxiliaryto the first company, serves as chairman of the Ag in the Classroom project for the Adams County Farmers Association and is a member of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church. She considers freezing and canning hobbies because she enjoys doing it so much, and also likes cooking and baking. And, of course, she supports lots of children's activities as her children lead their own busy lives.

There are challenges for the future in Extension, according to Mary. "Whether or not we like it, the demand for our services will grow. That will be the challenge, to put more staff on and find more salaries for qualified people." She pointed out that Extension is at a turning point because of the high numnber of staff who are reaching retirement age.

Mary admits that increasing costs of providing services, like increased postage and travel "means a lot of pressure on state and federal dollars. The challenge is to continue to meet the need."

Her term of service on PCCEA will conclude because of by laws which mandate change something Mary considers good because "we always have fresh ideas that way." Then she will find more time to spend at home. But she will forever cherish the opportunities her involvement affords her, and she will always remain a supporter of the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, the grass roots program that is seving all citizens.

Fulton Grange 66

Fulton Grange 66 met on Feb. 11 at Oakryn. The group passed a resolution to petition senators and congressmen to vote for the Federal Tax Limitation Amendment SJR-13 which would force Congress to permanently limit federal spending, balance the budget and limit the tax burden.

Richard Hanks was elected to the executive committee. Master J. Everett Kreider appointed the community service committee: Richard Hanks, Richard Lefever and Bobbie Browning. He also appointed Marian Holloway, Betty W... and Charles McSparran to the membership committee.

Carole Huber reported on the State Grange Deputy School. Betsy Huber, a member of the State Grange deaf committee reported that it would be helpful for each subordinate grange to have a deaf committee. She asked subordinate granges to collect hearing aid batteries, eye glasses and Campbell soup labels for the State Grange Deaf committee.

March will be Political Night and the meeting will be open to the public. State senators and members of the State House will attend.

HARDY BRAND CORN PERFORMANCE PROFILE:

Toni & Mike Rinaldi, Easton, PA

"In the 5 years we've been planting Hardy, it's been excellent. That's why we keep coming back."

"We've been increasing our use of Hardy over the years, because in five years we've had no problem at all. The 701X gives us great yields. And it's got nice ears to it, filled out all the way to the end. We like the 802X and 602XS, too—excellent standability and dry-down, and they're good yielders. When you're getting top yields, and a good price, you stay with it!"

from Farmer's Factory.

Unlike similar products on the market today, Spray-n-Tug from Farmer's Factory has been thoroughly tested and refined. Spray-n-Tug has the proven strength necessary to pull large field equipment while carrying a heavy load of liquid. The low profile design allows you to see problems as they develop, not several acres later. Forward visibility is improved because saddle tanks are no longer necessary. Spray-n-Tug quickly attaches to any Category II or III 3-point hitch. Swiveling wheels permit easy maneuvering while the pivoting axle prevents frame flexing. Options include 32' and 40' booms with a shock absorber cushion mount. Before you take a chance with an inferior copy take a look at the original Spray-n-Tug. Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This article is being written as I sit on the balcony of my hotel in Honolulu on a balmy evening in February.

Yesterday was spent traveling almost 5,000 miles to this island of Oahu. There were almost 400 people in the 747 plane that flew us across the Pacific Ocean. We were packed in ten seats across the plane and we were served some very nice meals with a choice of chicken or beef.

It was a clear day as we crossed the United States and we saw Lake Erie, the irrigated fields of Nebraska and the snow-covered Rocky Mountains. We had a non-stop flight from Philadelphia to Los Angeles.

Today we took a 100-mile bus trip around the island. Our first stop was an 11-acre watercress farm located next to a large shopping center. Here a large sprinkler system uses eight million gallons of water a day to control insects. Only pure spring water is used. The watercress is raised on a gravel bed where formerly there was only swampland.

We saw fields of both sugar cane and pineapple. One stop afforded us the opportunity to buy some fresh juice. Every three years the pineapple fields must be replanted. They hand-plant the tops in black plastic.

Many nationalities live here on the islands as Chinese, Japanese and even Puerto Ricans were brought here in the 1800's to serve as field laborers.

We were told that some of the world's best surfers use the North Shore of the island as 40 and 50 foot waves sometimes come in there.

We had lunch at the Turtle Bay Hilton and Country Club. It was a fancy place to eat, but for some reason I got sick in the afternoon and wasn't able to appreciate the tour of the Brigham Young University Agricultural Center.

Here they grow several varities of bananas, papayas and many orchids. Aqua farms where prawn and catfish are grown are to be common in the future. Tomorrow we see Pearl Harbor.

National TV special to support vo-ag program

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. – A nationally syndicated half-hour television program entitled, "Agriculture's Next Generation: A CONFLICT OF INTEREST," is set to be broadcast today at 5:30 p.m. on television station WPHL channel 17. The National FFA Organization has commissioned this program which will be narrated by Eddie Albert and will be aired on over 120 television stations nationwide.

Ken Ingalls, Cream Ridge, FFA state president, said of the special program, "It will focus on the need for more young people to enter agriculture-to assure the industry of maintaining its global 'number one' status

"We're really out to present some of the facts as to why this has happened and how it needs to change," said Larry Case, national FFA advisor. "We'll take you to a very rural community that has dropped vo-ag, and we'll compare that with a program that's meeting the needs."

The show will bring this problem to the attention of the American public and illustrate the high technololgical nature of modern agriculture--an industry that employs 22 percent of the nation's working population

As Senator Robert Dole (R.Kan.) says in one segment of the program, "If you don't ever get hungry, don't be concerned about agriculture, but I'd say most of us get hungry in the course of a day, so all of us should be aware of what's happening in agriculture."

Meat and potatoes - the way men like them

The men in our lives do so many special things for us that every once in awhile it's nice to treat them to a "favorite" meal just to say thank you and pat them on the back.

Although every man has his favorite, most men would agree that they like the simple, down-to-earth kind of meals that contain hearty helpings of meat and potatoes. Meals like pot roast, spaghetti, pork chops and steak topped off with apple or cherry pie are sure encourage wide smiles from the men in your family.

So go ahead. Cook up a dinner of "favorites" and say thanks to your men for all the little things they do that often pass by without notice.

Featured Recipe

Mary Grim supplies the featured recipe this week, with a chocolate cake which she describes as "really good, and really moist." Mary is president of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations, and lives in East Berlin, Adams County. She travels extensively in her position as president, and with two children active in school and 4-H, she often finds herself needing an easy dessert. This cake qualifies because it can all be done in the mixer and the results are always good, with a high cake. She cautions that it should not be overbaked, because it is a really moist cake.

Mary says butter cream frosting is her family's all-time favorite, but she uses almost any kind. The batter also makes delicious cupcakes, and she will sometimes fill those with whipped cream for a special treat.

Chocolate Cake

2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
2/3 cups cocoa
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
½ cup oil
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup hot coffee

Mix together dry ingredients with mixer. Add liquid ingredients to dry ingredients and mix for a few minutes. The batter will be thick and sticky. Add 1 cup hot coffee which will make a very thin batter. Pour batter into two greased and floured 8 or 9-inch cake pans, or one 13x9-inch pan and bake for 30 minutes at 350°F. Cake is done when it springs back when lightly touched. Don't overbake.

When push comes to shove, you need a deluxe John Deere 21-inch mower.

John Deere 21-inch deluxe mowers are easy rolling because all four wheels turn on ball bearings. And that's a real advantage on inclines or in tall grass.

Four 4-hp models are available — self-propelled and push-type, with electric and recoil start. All have deep, contoured aluminum deck and a dual safety system that stops both the engine and blade when the control handle is released.

Two cutting height adjustment levers let you set the mower from 7/8 to 2 3/4 inches above the ground. Side discharge is standard. A 2-bushel rear bagger is optional.

PEANUTTY PORK CHOPS

1 cup croutons
½ cup finely chopped salted peanuts
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
1 teaspoon crushed red chili pepper
⅓ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 tablespoon water
¾ teaspoon salt
8 loin pork chops, 1¼ inches thick, with pockets
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 10-ounce jar apple jelly
2 tablespoons lemon juice

In medium bowl, mix croutons, peanuts, onion, parsley and chili pepper. Stir together butter, water and ¾ teaspoon salt; pour over crouton mixture and toss gently.

Trim excess fat from pork chops; season chops with 1 teaspoon salt and the pepper. Stuff pockets with crouton mixture. Close openings with skewers. Heat jelly and lemon juice just to boiling, stirring constantly.

Place chops on grill 4 inches from medium coals. Cook 1 hour or until done, turing every 15 minutes and basting with jelly sauce during last 30 minutes of grilling. Makes 8 servings.

SAVORY DUCKLING ON A SPIT

1 5-pound duckling
2 teaspoons salt
1 small onion
3 sprigs parsley
½ cup dry vermouth or apple juice
½ cup dark corn syrup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon ground coriander

Wash ducking; pat dry. Rub cavity with salt, place onion and parsley in cavity. In saucepan, combine remaining ingredients; simmer 15 to 20 minutes or until sauce is reduced about half.

Fasten neck skin of duckling to back with skewer. Flatten wings over breast; tie string around breast to hold wings securely. Tie drumsticks securely to tail. Insert spit rod through center of bird from breast end toward tail. Secure duckling on spit with holding forks. Check balance by rotating in palms of hands.

Arrange medium-hot coals at back of firebox; place large foil drip pan under spit area. Just before placing duckling on rotisserie, use a baster to force ¼ cup of the sauce into cavity. If needed, use additional skewers to keep cavity closed securely.

Cook duckling 2 hours or until tender; frequently prick skin with fork to allow excess fat to drain away. Add coals if necessary to maintain even heat. During last 20 minutes of cooking, brush duckling every 5 minutes with remaining sauce. Makes 2 or 3 servings.

For the avid gardener

During the winter months we often do much of our armchair gardening and planning for the coming season. Just about every landscape is composed of various trees, shrubs and ground covers. There is another group of plants that is often overlooked: the vines.

Vines won't grow on every landscape, but they can be used in smaller spaces without all the height and spread of other plants. Plants with stems too thin to support themselves in an erect position, or plants with horizontal stems that are not stiff enough to support themselves, are classified as vines.

There are many types of vines. They range from annual and perennial plants to woody vines, evergreen vines, deciduous vines, flowering vines, and vines used mainly for their foilage cover in the summer. Some bear attractive fruit, and others develop bright autumn coloring

Most vines are planted as a cover for an item or structure in the garden. Depending on the selection, vines will cover walls, fences, pillars, posts, arbors, and trellises. On a loose woven fence, a vine can also provide a very effective garden screen with seasonal interest.

Not all vines will be equally effective in all situations. The method a vine uses to attach itself to a support is an important consideration. English Ivy will attach to a support or surface with small aerial rootlets, which actually grow onto the wall or support. Still others, like the Japanese Creeper or Virginia Creeper, attach to a surface with the help of branched tendrils. Each tendril develops a small set of adhesive discs at its end, which grow on the support and hold the vine in place. These types of vines will need little help in covering a surface or support.

Other vines, like the Wisteria and Bittersweet, will not attach themselves directly to a surface. These are twining vines that wrap themselves around a supporting wire, pole or slender stem. Often several stems from the vine itself will intertwine to provide enough support to get the stems off the ground. If this type of vine is used against a wall, you will have to supply some initial means of support to get the process started.

Vines with rootlets and adhesive tendrils are better used on stone and block walls, since residue remains if the plants are removed from the surface. There is no real danger to the mortar in the wall as long as it is sound. On older walls with soft joints, the rootlets may penetrate and force the material out or even pull it out from the weight of the vine. Twining vines cause no permanent harm to the surface sinced they are generally not in direct contact.

The pruning and care of vines is not a difficult task. It's easier if the plants are maintained on a trellis or arbor. Seasonal cutting will help to keep the growth on the support and away from other areas of the garden. Care is needed, however, to keep the vines where you want them. Many tend to escape if neglected for several seasons. The extra care that may be needed will offset the benefits this group of plants adds to the garden.

As you think over the possible areas in the garden where a vine might be helpful, consider some of the following plants, based on their method of attachment. Twining vines may need some additional garden construction, but there are several winter months to design and plan.

Vines that twine include Akebia quinata, (Akebia); Celastrus (Bittersweet species), Lonicera henryi (Henry Honeysuckle), Lonicera japonica 'Halliana' (Hall's Japanese Honeysuckle), and Wisteria.(Wisteria species).

Vines that will attach directly to a support or surface include Campsis radicans (Common Trumpet Creeper), Hedera helix (English Ivy), Hydrangea anomala subspecies petiolaria (Climbing Hydrangea), and Parthenocissus species (Japanese and Virginia Creeper).

There is one additional vine that climbs with the help of a modified, tendril-like leaf stalk: the Clematis species. Clematis is a very attractive spring and summer flowering vine.

As we sit inside waiting for the seasons to change, think about a spot or two where a vine would solve a particular gardening problem.

Newton High School student named outstanding FFA'er

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. – Yvette Francisco, 17, Newton High School senior and FFA member from Lafayette, New Jersey, was named February's Outstanding FFA Member-of-the-Month. The outstanding FFA member-of-the-month is selected on the basis of leadership skills, participation in FFA activities and on supervised occupational experience.

"The experience gained through involvement in FFA activities gives the vocational agriculture student a distinct advantage in the multifacet industry of agriculture," Yvette says.

She has been involved in vocational agriculture/FFA for three years and has achieved the Chapter Farmer Degree and served as chapter secretary and presently, chapter vice-president.

Francisco's supervised occupational experience has grown from a 10-cow registered Holstein herd during her first year in FFA, to a 26-cow herd this year. Her responsibilities range from feeding calves, fieldwork, upkeep of production records, care during calving, artificial insemination, management of show herd, registration records of herd, and supervision of health management.

Yvette also stays very active in the Newton FFA Chapter activities. She has participated in the Dairy Judging Contest at the state level, placing first as an individual and combining scores with her teammates to place first in the state as a team. The team competed in the National Dairy Judging Contest, and Yvette received a gold medal. She also attended the State and National FFA Conventions, participated in State Nursery and Landscape Contest and attended the Chapter Officer Leadership Training Conference. Yvette has served as committee chairperson for the chapter SOE, Earning, Saving Investment and Board Breakfast committees. She was secretary for Building Our American Communities committee.

Participation in FFA activities and SOE is an integral to vocational agriculture instruction. Learning through supervised experiences is an effective way for students to gain occupational competencies.

In May, Yvette will compete for Outstanding Member-of-the-Year at the State FFA Convention held at Cook College, Rutgers University.

To help remedy such man-made problems as erosion and overgrazing, wildlife managers are turning to the continent's largest rodent and nature's premiere dam-builder — the North American beaver. Some $100,000 erosion repairs by human engineers can be done for less than $5,000 by beavers under the supervision of wildlife managers.

ARE HEALTH FOODS FOR YOU?

The health food industry has been growing as more Americans buy foods that are "natural" or "organic" or have "No Preservatives Added." But are so-called health foods really any better or do they just cost more? When two pounds of raw sugar cost $2.70 and the same amount of regular table sugar costs 40 cents; we need to examine what we get for our health food dollar.

Experts do not agree on a definition for natural or organic. To some people, organic means grown without pesticides or artificial fertilizers, but buying foods that are pesticide free is hard to do. Small amounts of pesticides may be found in most foods if the scientist uses today's modern equipment that measures parts per trillion.

Pesticide residues in the foods we eat have been a big issue for some time. To date, no evidence has been found to indicate that the amount of residue found in foods has an influence on cancer rates, for example. On the other hand, organic fertilizers such as manure often contain salmonella germs that cause dysentary, and they may spread internal parasites as well.

Buyers of natural foods need to read labels. A box of corn flakes contains 7.8 percent sugar while some natural cereals contain 24 percent sugar and derive 30-40 percent of their calories from fat. Many of the popular "natural" snacks such as corn chips get their flavor from palm or coconut oil, which are among the most saturated fats available.

Before buying a food with "No Preservatives," check the labels of the other brands to see if they have preservatives. Because a food is free from preservatives does not mean it is better. Calcium propionate occurs naturally in Swiss cheese and is used in bread to retard mold growth. In order to call their products "natural," some bakers have stopped adding calcium propionate. As a result, the consumer must take precautions when storing these baked products.

If you're going to buy natural food, you must know how to store it. Polyunsaturated vegetables oils, better for you because they lower blood cholesterol, are subject to rancidity as is whole wheat flour. Nuts and seeds also become rancid or moldy quickly.

Consumers must exercise judgement in what they do with their food, too. Turning whole wheat flour and honey into chocolate cookies instead of bread is not a healty way to use your natural foods.

Going to the health food store won't help you in the long run unless you eat a balanced diet.

HOMEMADE TOYS FOR PRESCHOOLERS

Some suggestions for inexpensive homemade toys and games include the following: For your infant who will be especially attracted to the shiny and the noisy, it is suggested that you string an optional number of screw band canning rings (the kind used to tighten down canning lids) on a shoelace. Tie the ends in a knot. Your toddler will enjoy the shiny rings as they make musical sounds when jiggled about.

A pasteboard box with both ends cut out makes a toy to crawl through — again helping in the development of their body image — a sense of their own body in relation to things around them.

Another facinating experience for the child of three years and up consists in teaching them how to hold an object with a reflective surface in the sunlight and then to locate the dancing reflection on the ceiling or wall. Two children, each with his or her own reflective object, can arrange for the delightful dancing reflections to play tag across the ceiling or wall.

Yet another homemade toy requires only empty spools and a long shoelace or heavy cord, the ends of which have been stiffened with fingernail polish. For the toddler, string the spools yourself and secure the ends. The child of three years and up will like the challenge of stringing the spools by him or herself, helping to develop eye-hand coordination and recognition of colors.

Lancaster Farm Toy Show set for March 30

LANCASTER — On March 30 farm toy collectors from the East coast will converge on the Lancaster Treadway Inn for the Lancaster Farm Toy Show, Sale and Auction.

The show will specialize in small toy farm equipment and tractors. Some toys will date from the 1920's while others will be current special editions. Many models, such as Co-op, Bates, Cockshutt, Ferguson, Massey-Harris, Oliver, Sheppard Deisel, Wallis and others, will bring back memories.

Collectors will be setting up displays in competition for trophies and cash. Dealers and parts suppliers will set up to help collectors find what they need to fix up their old pieces of farm equipment or buy that missing piece for their collection.

A consignment auction will draw an estimated 600 people in the evening. Approximately 400 pieces will be sold for a total of over $25,000.

Some construction toys and trucks will also be displayed and sold.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

More and more, I realize that "they" are right.

There really and truly is no place like home.

That realization struck me once again, stepping out of the family car, after returning from a two-day cattle business meeting, and into last Saturday's spectacular mid-February preview of spring.

By gosh, it smelled like home.

After the closed-in, sometimes smokey, sometimes stuffy, air of confined convention meeting rooms, that farm fragrance of moisture melting into sunshine-warmed soil, and grass turning faintly green, blended with the gentle barnyard aromas of cows and feed, seemed more heavenly than the most costly perfume ever could.

The elegant trappings of the most expensive resort anywhere could never, but never, endure for very long in my heart against the sounds, the feel, the taste, the looks, the smells.....of home.

Before the car door was even fully opened, our four-legged, tail-wagging, welcoming committee had his nose against our hands, seeking a comforting touch, while his dark eyes presented a puzzled look about why we had left him to supervise this all by himself.

And even while the front door was being unlocked, four cats turned up from nowhere, to line up in formation for a barrage toward the inside while we juggled coats, luggage and a miscellaneous accumulation through the door.

The chill in the house, closed just for two brief days, had a pervading dampness. Soon, fired with a couple old newspapers and handful of dried maple-branch kindling, a fire transformed the almost-musty dampness to a mere memory, and a soft warmth snuggled into every corner.

In the box stalls, a new calf-heifer out a popular-proven sire, no less–served as a welcome home surprise, better than any red carpet rolled out could ever have been.

We did get a welcoming serenade, though, a melodious chorus of bawling calves, singing their hearts out for an early round of warm bottles and molasses-laced grain.

A stack of newspapers, magazines, letters and that inevitable trash-can mail(where does it all come from!) demanded immediate attention, and soon the kitchen took on the appearance of an explosion in a post office.

Before our offspring all vanished outside, I barked sargeant-style orders to remove residue from the luggage to the laundry basket and all their assorted souvenirs from what appeared to be a permanent display on the kitchen counter.

And the phone rang.

How nice to be home, again. It just takes being away for a short time to make us really appreciate it.

March is National Nutrition Month

PITTSBURGH — March is National Nutrition Month and the theme is good enough to eat! Crisp, Refreshing, Spicy, Sweet, Crunchy, and Delicious...Food, it even sounds nutritious!

For the past 13 years, the members of the American Dietetic Association have given special emphasis to building nutrition awareness during the month of March. But, they are quick to add that nutrition should be emphasized every day of every month.

Judy Dodd, a registered dietitian with Dairy & Nutrition Council points out that consumer interest in nutrition is at an all time high. The fitness boom combined with media emphasis on health have succeeded in sparking new interest in nutrition and food related information. Part of that interest is related to the nutrition theme. Sounding nutritious is not enough for the health conscious consumer. Today's food shopper is looking for foods that are nutritious!

Fruits and vegetables are becoming more important food choices both for snacking and for meal preparation. Food conscious consumers are using preparation methods such as stir-frying and steaming to maintain vitamins and keep in the crunch!

Whole grain and enriched cereals and breads are appearing on supermarket shelves. There was a time when items such as bulgur, brown rice, and pita were found only in specialty stores. Interest in increasing roughage (fiber) and providing variety in meals are responsible for availability of these items.

There is a renewed interest in the nutrient calcium, due in part to the research on osteoporosis, brittle bone disease. Milk and other dairy foods are the major source of calcium and are often fortified with Vitamin D, another nutrient important in preventing or treating osteoporosis. Yogurt, a food once considered a "fad," is now a staple calcium choice in many households.

The meat industry has responded to consumer concerns by lowering sodium content and fat content in processed meats such as ham. Pork is now leaner and ground beef is available in varying levels of fat content to help the consumer who is concerned with fat.

The marketplace is right for good nutrition, but it takes the interested consumer to bring the whole picture into focus. As a consumer, learn more about the foods available to you.

Nutrition labeling allows us to know more about the food in the package or can. The nutrition-wise consumer can determine the calorie value as well as the major nutrients in a serving. Later this year, sodium values will be listed on many more products.

Read labels and shop for nutrition. A handy guide to good nutrition is planning meals to include foods from the basic food groups. Each day includes:

- Dairy Foods - such as milk, yogurt, cheese - 2 servings for the adult, 3-4 for children
- Cereals and Grains - whole grain or enriched - 4 servings
- Meat, Fish, Poultry, Eggs, Peanut Butter, Dried Beans - 2 servings
- Fruit and Vegetables - 4 servings

Take some time this nutrition month to learn more about food. Since food is still our best source of the over fifty nutrients our body needs, it makes sense to protect your nutrition investment at all stages. That means, planning wisely, selecting knowledgeably, and preparing enthusiastically...to keep food as delicious (and nutritious) as it sounds!! For an attractive "GUIDE TO GOOD EATING" to use as a nutrition reminder, contact Dairy & Nutrition Council at 9370 McKnight Road, Suite 306, Pittsburgh, PA 15237-5948.

Delaware 4-H leader selected for Salute to Excellence honors

NEWARK, Del. – Ruth Ann Messick, Kent County volunteer 4-H leader, will represent Delaware in the third Salute to Excellence program at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Md., March 16-23.

Messick (who lives in Greenwood) is one of 52 men and women from each state, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia selected for the seven-day recognition and training program, which is designed to improve and expand 4-H, the youth education program of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Salute to Excellence, which also includes incentive funds to implement volunteer action plans in each state, is supported by a grant to the National 4-H Council from R. J. Reynolds Industries, Inc., of Winston-Salem, N.C.

A bookkeeper, Messick is the leader of the Peach Blossom 4-H Club in Harrington Del. A 4-H volunteer for 20 years, she attended a national 4-H leader forum at the 4-H Center in 1976, and the Northeast Regional 4-H Volunteer Leader Forum in Columbia, Md., last year.

Messick's involvement with 4-H began when her oldest daughter became interested in joining a local club. Messick organized a community 4-H club and subsequently initiated a paper drive which now collects more than 2,000 pounds a month.

Her 4-H'ers also collect funds for several charitable groups, such as the American Cancer Society and Multiple Sclerosis Society. Many of the club members have received top honors during county events, and her club has had 23 state 4-H award winners, six of whom received national scholarships and honors.

"My home is always open to young people who rush in to show a prize, discuss a problem or just talk," Messick says. 4-H club work emphasizes the home, brings parents and children together and develops young people's abilities to cooperate with others. "I have a sign in my basement where our club meets," she adds. "It says, 'Joy is seeing a person grow in mind, body and emotions. Pride is knowing you helped.'"

While she is in the nation's capital Messick will attend briefings with top officials from the executive branch of government, a reception on Capitol Hill for members of Congress, workshop sessions and field trips to cultural and historic sites. Workshops will focus on communication skills, public affairs, interpersonal relationships, group dynamics, resource development, creative techniques for working with youth, and ways to broaden the roles of volunteers in 4-H.

In addition, she will develop a plan of action to strengthen volunteerism for 4-H in Delaware. She will also bring home a $1,000 grant to implement the plan in cooperation with the state 4-H staff.

Milk carton campaign aims to find missing children

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Milk cartons displaying pictures of missing children are appearing on store shelves in towns and cities across the nation. The milk cartons are part of a nationwide campaign organized by the National Child Safety Council to locate as many of the nation's missing children as possible.

Each year, 1.8 million children are reported missing in the United States. Of those children, nearly two-third's are runaways, reports Barbara Handley, director of research and development at National Child Safety Council. But many of the remaining missing children have been criminally abducted from their homes or public places, and it is these children the milk carton program has targeted.

Approximately 700 dairies have volunteered to participate in this program, which began in some locations about three weeks ago. Each of the participating dairies, in cooperation with their milk carton suppliers, carries pictures of missing children along with descriptive information about the children on their milk cartons.

The cartons also carry a toll-free telephone number for the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children where customers can call if they have information about a missing child.

"We're hoping that by getting that 800 number out there, people will know where to call," Handley said.

So far, she said, response to the program has been excellent. Telephone calls to the National Center have increased by 30 to 50 percent in the weeks since the cartons began appearing, indicating the extent of the nation's interest and response to this program.

Handley said that so far no children have been found because of a direct tip from the milk cartons, but added, "We're pleased that people are responding."

A number of dairies had made similar efforts to locate missing children in their neighborhoods, but Handley stresses the importance of making the campaign nationwide. "Most kids aren't found in their own hometown," she explained. Many are found in other states; therefore, she continued, it is important for the pictures of missing children to be circulated in a wide geographical area.

The pictures and information about the missing children come from the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, an organization that works in conjunction with the U.S. Justice Department.

The National Council also keeps and distributes a catalogue of missing children, which currently lists 78 youngsters. Pictures and brief biographies of these children are being circulated among the dairies, so that each child will get as much public exposure as possible.

While the National Council aims to find missing children, it is also concerned with preventing further abductions. The Council publishes a number of pamphlets designed to educate children and parents about child abductors and molesters. Handley said that through the milk carton program, the Council hopes to make adults and children alike more aware of the problem so they can work together to prevent it.

In Lancaster County, Turkey Hill Dairy and Penn Dairies are participating in the project. Richard Pellman, Turkey Hill sales manager, said his dairy has [illegible] will be displayed on a rotating basis over the next several months. Each side panel bearing two pictures and biographies will run for about two weeks, before it is replaced with a new one.

The dairy is putting the missing children panels on all their gallon and half gallon milk cartons.

"We feel as though it's a very good, very necessary kind of thing," Pellman said, adding that he is pleased to see "that a real effort is being made to find these people."

Pellman sees the cartons not only as a means of finding lost children, but as a way of educating the public and putting a stop to the problem. "Hopefully this will be a big success," he says.

Nancy Frankhouser of Penn Dairies said Penn Dairy got involved in the program when their carton manufacturer brought it to their attention several weeks ago. "We decided it was a public service we wanted to participate in," she said.

But in order for this program to be successful, the public must take an active role. They must carefully study the pictures on the cartons and then take action if they see someone they know.

So next time you reach for a glass of milk, turn that milk carton around and study the faces printed on the panel. You may be able to help a family regain a "lost" loved one.

Richard Pellman, sales manager at Turkey Hill Dairy, takes a closer look at the missing children featured on the dairy's milk cartons as he stocks the cooler in a minit-market.

Missing children: A national tragedy that can be prevented

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Each year a shocking number of American children run away, are abducted or simply disappear. Most of them are never seen again.

While recent efforts have focused on finding missing children, prevention is still the best defense against abduction. And, education is the best weapon in the prevention arsenal.

Parents are the first teachers of children and are responsible for showing them how to survive in the world and cope with the dangers and challenges life will bring them. The first and most important lesson parents can teach their children is how to protect themselves.

The following skills can help a child deal with possible abduction:

- Make sure the child knows his full name, address, and telephone number. Many missing children are very young. Once separated from their parents they become confused and disoriented. If they know their full name, address and telephone number, someone can help them find their parents.
- Teach children how to make a long distance telephone call. Often, abducted children are taken far from their homes. Unless they know how to make a long distance telephone call, they are in a foreign world. Every child should know how to dial "0" or use the 911 emergency number.
- Warn children never to get into a car withough parental permission. A common abduction technique is to lure a child into a car and speed away. Remind children that adults rarely ask children for directions. If someone should stop and offer a ride or candy or other treat, the child should know not to go near the car.
- Instruct children not to tell telephone callers that they are home alone, or open the door when they are home alone.
- Require that children always ask for parental permission before going into anyone's house. Knowing where a child is decreases the chances he will disappear from sight.

BACK HOME

By Michelle S. Rodgers

Berks Extension Home Economist

Hang in There, Farmers!

I enjoy reading so it was not unusual for me to take some reading material home from the office last weekend. I have to admit that I didn't enjoy what I was reading though, because it really was sobering material that him home. My reading material was a paper, a staff report on "Financial Distress on Pennsylvania Dairy Farms," written by Bill Grisley, assistant professor of agricultural economics at The Pennsylvania State University. The report cited the fact that 27 percent of the 1,477 dairy farms involved in the study had residual cash flow that were zero or negative. And 25 percent had positive cash flow of less than $15,000. The conclusion of this report was increasing financial distress. My conclusion was STRESS!"

In addition to financial distress, farming is becoming more stressful because it's evolving rapidly from a largely physical occupation into one that requires more and more mental activity. No longer is it only heavy work and long hours but it includes critical timing, and crucial problem solving. Farmers are executors of hugh sums of money and are carrying large debt loads. The economic uncertainties of today's marketplace make farming a risky business.

Farming is a physically dangerous occupation. Farmers must contend with sophisticated, potentially dangerous equipment, toxic chemicals, uncooperative livestock, and less than ideal working conditions.

Stress on the farm is certainly a part of my memories of "back home" on our family dairy farm. Getting the hay in before the rain, machinery breaking down and the parts not available, and cattle galloping through wet corn fields surface to my memory. However I think the most memorable stressful event for me was forgetting to turn on the milk tank. I don't know where that ranks on a scale, but it has got to be near the top!

Despite this picture of "stress pile-up" that I've formulated here, I'm keenly aware that it is a reality of the farm business. It goes with the job. And Pennsylvania farmers are "hanging in there," dedicated to producing food for the nation, despite these difficulties.

Farming will continue to be stressful business, but it can be managed if we learn to accept its inevitability and develop strategies to cope with it. Here are some suggestions for relaxation and stress reduction:

- Enjoy 20 minutes of uninterrupted quiet. Any activity that will relax you is good; listen to music, take a walk, read, or nap.
- Engage in recreation. Involve yourself in something different from your everyday routine like a hobby or sport activity.
- Take one thing at a time. Isolate a single concern and deal with it.
- Learn to say NO to requests that you can't reasonably handle, and don't feel guilty about it.
- Don't keep anxiety and anger bottled up. Talk it out with someone you trust.
- Set reasonable goals and expectations for yourself.

Farm families have as many potential stress events as there are types of farm operations. One of the biggest factors farmers today have going for them is their ability to change and keep up with the times. And that means that we're all going to have to work at strengthening our skills of dealing with stress. As stressful events occur, they can serve as training grounds for dealing with future stressful events. And after all, if you forget to turn on the milk tank once, you probably won't do it again!

• Stress that no one has the right to touch him or make him feel uncomfortable. Children should know they have the right to say "no."

• Encourage children to tell when any adult asks them to keep a "secret," offers them gifts, or wants to take pictures of them.

• Outline what a child should do when he can't find you. Teach a child never to leave the place he is (grocery, department store, ball park) without you because you will never go home without him. Also teach him that mom and dad have first names, that the police are his friends, and how to listen for his name on the loudspeaker or intercom system.

There are also a number of procedures parents can teach themselves to help protect their children from abduction. Parents should make it a point to know their children's friends. Being able to pinpoint where and with whom your child spends time may be crucial in an emergency.

Know where your child is at all times. Don't leave young children unattended.

Parents should be involved in their children's activities. Your active participation in your child's world not only shows your interest and support, it also allows you the opportunity to know what she does with her time. This information may be important in an effort to find her.

Listen when your child tells you she does not want to be with someone. Children's likes and dislikes are based on their experiences. When they say they don't like someone or some activity, there is usually a reason why and parents should investigate.

Parents need to be sensitive to changes in a child's behavior or attitude. There is probably a reason for the change. Encourage open communication and do not belittle any fear or concern your child may express to you. Knowing your child is the first step in identifying changes in moods or behavior. A child who has been approached or abused may feel anxious or guilty. She may avoid certain individuals and activities. If you treat her with respect and support when she shares her feelings, she will be more likely to tell you about her problems.

Children need to know where they may go and with whom. Be very specific and very clear. Children who understand the rules are more likely to follow them.

Parents should have identification materials ready. These include fingerprints, a recent full-body photograph and dental records.

Families should have an emergency plan and a family code word. An emergency plan and a family code word agreed on beforehand not only create a united effort, they offer structure and direction in an emotionally tense time.

The emergency plan describes in simple terms what you will do and what you want your child to do if she is abducted. The plan would describe your efforts to find her (contacting police, friends and neighbors) and her efforts to reach you (calling you or a 911 number, approaching a mother with children for help, screaming in public). A clear and simple plan will reassure your child that you will keep trying to find her and that she should keep trying to contact you.

A family code word identifies friends. If a person does not know the family code word, the child will know not to go with him or her.

When a child is missing, the family emergency plan should guide everyone's actions. Parents should:

• Report the child missing as soon as possible. The first 24 hours are crucial. Contact the local police first, then the FBI.

• Contact the local media. Spreading the word about the disappearance increases the chances someone will see the child.

• Contact organizations that help parents find missing children. Start with the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Farm animals visit Cumberland Valley High School during FFA Week

BY MONTIE TAK
Staff Correspondent

CARLISLE – Swine don't often seek higher education. But three little pigs recently went to Cumberland Valley High School in honor of FFA week, Feb. 17-23.

While most little pigs go to market and some little pigs stay home, these porkers found a new – albeit brief – role. They were on display in a pen in the school courtyard where hundreds of passing students could see them. FFA members, including the pigs' owner, Brian Barger, manned a nearby information desk.

The following day Dave Shultz' registered Hereford heifer took over the limelight. With an already-illustrious show career underway, "Lightnin'" is used to attention and it does not turn her head. Sheep and dairy animals also participated in the displays.

A junior at Cumberland Valley, Barger says he has several more crossbred swine he keeps on his grandfather's farm. Showing has spurred his interest in hogs, and in his first year of showing he won a reserve championship at Shippensburg Fair. After graduation he hopes to farm.

"This is a time our chapter can get out in the public and show what they do for people," says senior Ray Yost. He is president of the FFA chapter and hopes to go into the electronics field after high school. He keeps five registered Holsteins on a brother's farm in Mechanicsburg.

"I will probably maintain my interest in farming, if only part time," adds Yost.

Dave Shultz likes cattle, too, but his run more towards meat than milk. He owns 20 registered Herefords in addition to "Lightnin'" and wants to farm as soon as he is graduated next year. He also has four crossbred brood sows.

"I would like to have 50 sows," says Shultz. "I want to go from farrowing to finish."

FFA vice-president Sandy Hopple sees her role as that of educator. She says FFA week is a good time to interest more students in vo-ag. A senior, she hopes to attend Shippensburg University and major in business education. Hopple plans to keep her flock of 15 Suffolk sheep.

"This is not so much a time to recognize our members as it is to promote FFA and increase awareness," says Bob Leib. "The biggest thing is to realize there is a very strong and viable youth organization in FFA. They are the future agricultural leaders of our country."

When it comes to vo-ag, the Mechanicsburg native knows what he's talking about. Not only is he in his 11th year as a vo-ag teacher at the high school, he has also gone through the program as a student.

"In those days FFA just taught farming," he says. "But now it is much more sophisticated."

Leib shares teaching duties with Bruce Lemmon, who has been with the vo-ag department eight years. Leib points out the longevity of ag teachers and calls it "a strong continuation of staff." In the 31 years the program has existed, he and Lemmon are only the third and fourth ag teachers at the school.

They teach 65 students, virtually all FFA members, in a production-oriented program taking in animal and crop production and soil and environmental studies. Leib points out one of the highlights of the junior year is a total butchering, which usually takes place in March as a culmination of the meat unit. "This runs from production to slaughter and to retailing," he adds.

Vo-ag skills also benefit the high school. Students installed chair railing in the faculty rooms and plant and maintain much of the shrubbery around the school. "One of the departments may have a need and we try to work closely with them. I think that's what makes our program so good," Leib says.

He mentions tremendous community and school support of the program. Cumberland Valley had started out as a rural district but enrollment is now largely from suburban areas. Many of the students have never seen a cow up close.

This can be a problem, admits Leib, because some of those students don't realize what agriculture is all about. "There is definitely a stigma. They have to learn they are able to have their interests because they don't have to produce their own food."

About 20 percent of the vo-ag students go on to college, with perhaps 75 percent of the total becoming involved in agriculture within five years of graduation.

"A number of students today do not go into farming because of the financial aspect," notes Leib, "but they go into supporting roles. The agriculture picture has become very diversified and we have to have students to fill those needs."

"These little pigs went to school." These 7-week-old crossbred hogs, which belong to Brian Barger, spent some time at Cumberland Valley High School during FFA Week. With the hogs from left are Ray Yost, FFA chapter president; Brian Burger, junior advisor; and Sandy Hopple, vice president.

For Background: 4 to 5 ounces of White (or Off-White, Fisherman or Pastels) – color A.

For Border: about ¾ ounce of yarn for each border stripe in the desired colors–B,C,D.

Size 9/I crochet hook or any size to obtain gauge.

Embroidery needle.

For Stenciling: Stencil Decor' precut, reusable "Stencils Fresh From the Cabbage Patch" stencils. All-surface paints, stencil brushes, tape, paper towel, iron.

Gauge: 15 single crochets = 4 inches.

ABBREVIATIONS

ch=chain
sc=single crochet
st=stitch

TO COMPLETE DOLL BLANKET

Step 1–Crochet Blanket: With A, ch 46. Sc in second ch from hook and in each ch across, ch 1, turn. Row 1: sc in each sc across, ch 1, turn. Repeating Row 1, continue to sc until piece measures approximately 12 inches.

Step 2–Crochet Border: Join B in a corner, ch 4, sc in the same corner st * ch 1, skip 1 st (or skip one row at the sides) sc in next st (or next row at the sides) repeat from * around. Note: Work (sc 1, ch 2, sc 1) in each corner of each row. End with ch 1, and slip st in the second ch of the starting ch–4. Work a second row with B and work two rows each of A,C,A,D and A.

Step 3–Stencil on the Design: Read the manufacturer's recommendations for stenciling on fabrics (included in the stencil packet). Note: Do not wash blanket before stenciling.

Center the stencil on the crochet, and tape it in place.

Avoid unwanted paint smears by placing tape around the edge of the stencil.

Use a "dry brush."

Try your color on an extra piece of crocheted swatch or a paper towel before stenciling on your placemat.

Hold the tip of the brush perpendicular to the fabric and use a "tapping" motion with the brush. This allows a good control of color depth and shading.

Make sure your hands are clean before removing or changing the stencil.

If you make a mistake with the stencil, turn the blanket over and stencil the pattern on the backside.

Step 4–Set Paint: After stenciling, allow paint to dry for 24 hours. Next, iron the blanket, stenciled side up, with dry iron at cotton setting, for 20 seconds. This will set the paint.

Step 5–String Balloons: Embroider in long stitch a string to connect balloons with the doll's hand.

WASHING INSTRUCTIONS

Wash blanket in machine with cold water and mild detergent.

Delaware students win Farm Credit scholarships

NEWARK, Del. — Juliet Marshall and Joshua J. Willey III, both plant science majors at the University of Delaware, have won $500 Delaware Farm Credit scholarships for the current academic year.

Marshall, a junior studying agronomy, has a 3.9 grade point average and is in the university honors program. She is an officer in the collegiate chapter of Future Farmers of America (FFA) and also serves on the AG College Council. She spent last summer collecting field data for the university's Soybean Task Force, a joint research and extension project funded in part by the Delaware Soybean Board and aimed at identifying the key factors which affect yield in this crop.

Joshua Willey

Marshall recently won a similar scholarship from the Delmarva Corn and Soybean Technology Conference Planning Committee. At present she is undecided on her career goal, but is considering agriculture-related extension, government work, or research.

Juliet Marshall

Willey was last year's junior Farm Credit winner and received a renewal of this scholarship. Now a senior, he is studying for a career in the wholesale nursery industry.

Since 1981 the Delaware Farm Credit associations have awarded two scholarships annually to students majoring in some aspect of agriculture at the university. Awards are based on merit. Recipients must be full-time students and their parents or guardians must reside in Delaware.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Quick and easy manicotti

Manicotti is one of our favorite Italian meals. But making it used to be one of my least favorite jobs. Trying to stuff those cold slippery floppy noddles...Aarrgh!

Now, with a microwave, it's different. I can stuff the manicotti tubes before cooking them! They're dry, firm, and don't split. The manicotti cook directly in the sauce, after they're stuffed. What a delight! It's fast, easy, delicious and no more slithery noodles to stuff!

The recipe below is given in two quantities, to accommodate different family sizes, and also, because the larger size pan, 9 x 13" dish may not fit in your microwave. The quantities and cooking times for four servings, using an 8 x 12" flat dish, are given first. The quantities for 6 servings, using a 9 x 13" flat dish are given in (parentheses). If you find this confusing, circle the quantities and cooking times you plan to use.

Cheese Manicotti

½ (¾) pound ground beef
3 (4) cups spaghetti sauce
⅓ (½) cup water
1 (1½) cup(s) ricotta cheese
¼ (⅓) cup parmesan cheese
1 (½) tablespoons chopped parsley
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 (2) beaten eggs
8 (10-12) uncooked manicotti

1. Break up ground beef in an 8 x 12" (9 x 13") glass utility pan. Cook on high for 3-4 minutes, stirring once after 2 minutes, until cooked.

2. Stir in spaghetti sauce and water; heat 10 (12-14) minutes on high, until hot. (If your oven has a probe, set the probe for 170 F degreees and heat on high.)Stirring once or twice will help the sauce heat more quickly.

3 While sauce is heating, combine cheeses, parsley, pepper and eggs(s), stirring until well combined. Using a small spoon, fill each uncooked manicotti to the ends. Use the back of the spoon to push the filling inside the pasta (Usually one end of the manicotti is open more than the other, work from the open end!) This will take a little while, but is much easier than after the manicotti are cooked!

4. Press each manicotti down into the hot spaghetti sauce, making sure it is surrounded by and covered with sauce Cover pan with plastic wrap. Microwave on high for 10 (15) minutes.

5. Turn each manicotti over using tongs or two forks or spoons. Spoon sauce over the tops of the manicotti, and recover pan. Cook on medium high (70,7) for 15 (20) minutes. Let stand 15 minutes before serving for the noodles to finish cooking.

Tip: To prepare ahead, complete Steps 1 and 3, and refrigerate manicotti and sauce separately. When ready to cook, heat spaghetti sauce, as in Step 2 before combining, then continue with Step 4. It is important for the spaghetti sauce to be very hot before adding the manicotti.

Note: The cooking times above are for 600-700 Watt microwave ovens; for 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute, for 400-500 W, add 20 second to each minute.

If you've tried to cook a big pot of spaghetti in your microwave, you discovered what I did when I tried the first time: it doesn't work very well! The problem is getting the water to boil in the same day you start it. Now that's an exaggeration, but it's true, a microwave is very slow in heating large quantities of water. In fact, if you have more than five or six cups of a liquid (water, soup, milk, etc.) to heat, it will be faster to do it on your range.

To cook pasta in your microwave, start with the hottest tap water you can get. Use less water than you do on the range burners, and use less salt. I use 6-8 cups HOT water and 1/2 to 1 teaspoon salt with 1-2 teaspoons oil added to the water for about 8 ounces pasta. Put water, salt and oil in a 4-quart casserole, cover and cook for 8-10 minutes on high until boiling. Then stir in the pasta, and recover. Cook on high, stirring once halfway through, for 6-10 minutes, until tender. The exact cooking time will depend on the thickness and shape of the pasta.

If you're having spaghetti and sauce for dinner, the fastest way to get dinner on the table is to cook the pasta on the range, and use your microwave to heat or prepare the sauce in a covered casserole If your oven has a temperature probe, put it in the sauce and set the probe for 160-170 degrees. Heat on high power until hot or until probe turns oven off. Stirring once or twice will help it heat more quickly. When the sauce is hot, use 10 percent power (warm, 10,1) to keep the sauce piping hot until you are ready to dish out the plates. No scorching on the bottom in your microwave!

Lebanon 4-H leader honored

Donna McConaughey

ONO — The spotlight shifted from youth accomplishments at last Friday's Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Recognition Banquet as the livestock community took time to honor their organizational leader, Donna McConaughey.

For her involvement with Lebanon County 4-H'ers during the past year, Donna received two pieces of American Tourister Luggage.

"We instituted some new programs and kind of pulled it all together," said the Indiana County native who took over the program in January of last year.

Indeed, Lebanon 4-H'ers watched their livestock program undergo many changes in the past year, with the addition of a fitting and showing seminar, and a livestock judging program that took participants to the Keystone International Livestock Expo in November.

McConaughey instituted a "buddy program", with veteran club members helping to get first-year members off to a running start. She also began promoting breeding projects, and made sure that she and her 17 4-H leaders made plenty of on-farm project visits throughout the year.

"The other thing we're really emphasizing is marketing and also some financial management," Donna points out.

A graduate of Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Donna grew up on an Indiana County farm where her parents, Clyde and Lois McConaughey, raised Duroc pigs, Jersey cattle and Southdown sheep. Donna's longstanding commitment to the livestock industry began at the age of 11 months when she attended her first hog show, and by the age of five, she was already in the show ring with her father's sheep.

"She's taken ahold of the 4-H program and really made it work," says Lebanon County extension agent, Ken Winebark, who points out that the enterprising leader also sponsored an outstanding member program for the first time this year, recognizing the club's top rookie, junior and senior members for their accomplishments.

Employed as staff development coordinator in the nursing department at Lebanon's Good Samaritan Hospital, Donna is a staff correspondent for Lancaster Farming Newspaper.

Lebanon Livestock Club honors members and friends

ONO — The Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Club held its annual Recognition Banquet on Feb. 22 in the Ono Firehall. The evening's program included recognition of members and various Friends of 4-H.

The Livestock Club includes 46 members and 18 leaders. All members present received certificates of project completion for meeting all project requirements in at least one project area.

Three members were named Outstanding Members in their age group based on their 4-H activities and project work throughout the year. The Outstanding Rookie Award is presented to a first-year member under the age of 13. Donald Kleinfelter of Myerstown received this award. Donald completed a swine project and showed at the Lebanon Area Fair, Winter Roundup, and the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The Outstanding Junior Member was Daryl Grumbine, also of Myerstown. Daryl is an officer in the club and has been active in livestock judging and several shows, including the Keystone International Livestock Exposition. Daryl carries both swine and sheep projects.

Melanie Bow of Annville won the Outstanding Senior Member award. Melanie has her own flock of Suffolk sheep and bred the market lambs she showed this year. Melanie is president of the Livestock Club and has been very active in county 4-H activities. She is also active in sheep shows and sales throughout Pennsylvania.

The Outstanding Member Awards were a new program begun by the leaders as part of the plan to provide and encourage a comprehensive livestock program. All aspects of the livestock industry are addressed and members are encouraged to become involved in a variety of activities.

A program on the 4-H Commodity Marketing 4-H Project was presented to those attending the banquet. This project will be initiated in the club in 1985. Those who attended the banquet were given a preview of the types of activities involved in the Livestock Club in addition to the traditional shows and sales.

The Chicago Board of Trade sponsors the 4-H Community Marketing Project and is one example of a Friend of 4-H on the national level. The Livestock Club also recognized Friends of 4-H on the county level.

More than 75 buyers supported 4-H'ers at the Fair, Winter Roundup, and Farm Show. Of these 75, 20 were new buyers who supported the program for the first time in 1984. Organizational leader, Donna McConaughey informed the buyers that several members plan to begin or already are actively involved in livestock breeding projects as a result of profits from sale of animals.

A Friend of 4-H who received special recognition was Harry Bachman of Annville. Harry has sold nearly all of the Livestock Club's sales. He received a plaque displaying a picture of himself auctioning the 1984 Winter Roundup honoring him for "Outstanding Service to the Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Program".

Several members received plaques or trophies recognizing them for top winnings at various shows. These awards were presented by leaders, Mark Heisey and Ernie Weaber. They thanked the many businesses that sponsored the awards and noted that more 4-H'ers qualified for awards this year than ever before.

Beef awards were presented for Lebanon Area Fair, Winter Roundup, and Farm Show. Fair awards included: grand champion steer-Eric Harnish, reserve champion steer-Kelly Heisey, champion showman-Kelly Heisey, and champion fitter-Leigh Hitz.

Awards for Roundup were champion steer-Shelby Heagy, reserve champion steer-Jeffrey Bomgardner, champion showman-Dorene Eberly, and champion fitter-Jeffrey Bomgardner. Receiving plaques for Farm Show steers were: Heather Heisey, Leigh Hitz, and Rodney Bomgardner.

In the sheep division, Melanie Bow received Fair awards for champion market lamb, champion fitter, and champion showman. Darren Grumbine took home reserve champion market lamb and reserve champion pen of market lambs honors. The champion pen of market lambs was shown by Matthew Hetrick. Farm Show lambs were shown by Melanie Bow and Heather Emrich.

The swine awards included twelve Farm Show awards which were presented to Kelly Weaber, Jay and Donald Kleinfelter, Jason Krall, David Simmon, Shelby Heagy, Jeffrey, Rodney, Kathy, and Daryl Bomgardner, and Daryl and Darren Grumbine. Fair swine awards went to Darren Grumbine for grand champion hog, Jeffrey Bomgardner for reserve champion hog, Daryl Grumbine for champion showman, and Amy Bachman for champion fitter.

Swine Roundup awards were presented to Shelby Heagy for grand champion hog and champion fitter. Rodney Bomgardner for reserve champion hog, and Daryl Grumbine for champion showman.

The winners of the Pen Decorating Contest held in conjunction with the Fair were presented with their checks. This contest was begun in 1984 to teach the members about educating the public and promoting their product. Winners included: Swine--The Weaber Family, first; Amy and Eric Harnish, second; and Brian and Kevin Myer, third. Sheep--Heather Emrich, first; and Rick Wright, second. Beef--Leigh Hitz, first.

Outstanding Member awards were presented for the first time in 1984. Daryl Grumbine took home the Outstanding Junior Member plaque, Melanie Bow, Outstanding Senior Member; and Donald Kleinfelter, Outstanding Rookie.

Claiming awards in the sheep division were Darren Grumbine, Matthew Hetrick, Heather Emrich and Melanie Bow (seated).

National Horse Roundup added to NAILE schedule

CREAMERY — A new event has been added to the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky. A national 4-H event titled "Eastern National 4-H Horse Roundup" will be held at the exposition on Nov. 9, 1985.

Roundup is an expansion and overall move from the very successful annual event held in Harrisburg. Roundup will offer six educational events open to all states. These will include an all-breeds judging contest, horse bowl contest, public speaking contest, team demonstration contest, individual demonstration contest and a hippology contest. Hippology is a new team event being introduced on a pilot basis and combines judging, horse bowl type questions, feed and equipment identification, identification of other factors and hay evaluation.

Roundup will be a joint effort of the North American, USDA Extension Service, National 4-H Council, cooperating states via cooperative Extension Services and the overall horse industry. Kentucky will host the overall event and program. Plans are being made to host over 300 top 4-H horse project members from all over the nation. A dual event will also be offered in Denver and all states may elect in 1985 as to which event to participate in.

The Roundup in Kentucky will provide access to one of the best facilities and most prestigious livestock expositions in the world. 4-H'ers may also elect to visit world famous farms, the Kentucky Horse Park and other points of interest in the Louisville and Lexington areas. Headquarters for the event will be located in the Executive Inn near the fairgrounds.

Additional details about Roundup may be obtained through the Cooperative Extension Services in each state. For information about the North American write to: North American International Livestock Exposition, P.O. Box 36367, Louisville, Kentucky 40233.

Lower Dauphin FFA'ers win project book awards

HUMMELSTOWN – Three Lower Dauphin FFA members won state project book awards and nine others were selected for Dauphin County awards, in two separate competitions held recently.

Sharon Huntzberger, Elizabethtown, was honored as the Dauphin County Production Credit award winner, given for the outstanding student project book in the county. She also received the county Swine Farming award, and a silver medal on the state level, as well as a county blue ribbon.

Lydee Cassel, Hummelstown, was awarded a gold medal in her category at the state level, and she also received a blue ribbon in county competition.

Jay Fleck, Elizabethtown, was selected as the top agricultural work experience student in the county, and also received a bronze medal in the state competition.

Kriebel, Kelly named Pa. Holstein distinguished juniors

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA — Kim Kriebel and Brian Kelly were named the 1985 Pennsylvania Holstein distinguished junior members as the highlight of a youth awards luncheon during the association's annual meeting Feb. 22 at the Adams Mark Hotel.

Winners in the junior division of the contest were Cumberland County members Tedd Hock and Michelle Cornman.

Kim Kriebel, 20, is the daughter of Richard and Gail Kriebel, Millerstown. A former Perry County dairy princess, the Penn State junior owns 20 head of registered Holsteins and bred 19 of them under her own name. She's active in Penn State Diary Science Club activities and has several years experience in 4-H and FFA dairy judging, dairy bowl, cattle exhibiting and related dairy activities.

At the Holstein dairy bowl competition, held prior to the junior meeting, Kriebel served as captain of the winning Perry County team, which will compete at the national contest.

Brian Kelly is also 20 and the son of Tom and Peg Kelly of Tyrone. He's a dairy science major at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, with plans for a career as a veterinarian. Kelly presently owns 19 head of registered Holsteins, 14 of which he bred.

Among his numerous Blair County 4-H activities are dairy judging and dairy bowl, milk and fat production contests, and participation in past national Holstein conventions. A talented photographer, Kelly won the state 4-H photography division and attended National Club Congress in Chicago.

Kriebel and Kelly's winning scrapbooks of their Holstein careers will now be entered for national consideration, with national distinguished junior member winners to be announced at the Hartford, Connecticut convention in June.

Other finalists in the senior division were Sandra Moser, New Berlinville; Constance Ohlinger, Mohrsville; Scott Troutman, Myerstown; all of Berks County; and Geary Shade, Alexandria, Huntingdon County.

Junior division winner Michelle Cornman is the daughter of Frances and the late Paul Cornman, Mechanicsburg. A sophomore at Cumberland Valley High School, Cornman is a member of the county's 4-H dairy juding team and active in a variety of dairy-related activities. She's bred seven of the ten head she owns in the family herd.

Tedd Hock, 15, is the son of Paul and Judy Hoch, owners of Hochstead Farm at Shippensburg R1. He is a sophomore at Shippenburg High School, member of the Blue Mountain 4-H club and pursues a number of related dairy club interests. Of the seven head of registered Holsteins which he owns, Hoch bred one, and he assists with the family's 145-head milking string.

Other finalists in the junior division were Bridgette Boyer, York, York County; Lori Houser, Woodward, Centre County; Benjamin Dum, Jr., Elliottsburg, Perry County; and Mark Moser, New Berlinville, Berks County.

Winner of the junior association's calf raffle was Eugene King of new Enterprise, who reportedly elected to take the optional $1,000 cash instead. The junior association now plans to sell the Rothrock-bred calf, with its high-index pedigree sprinkled with Excellents, at the March 29 spring calf sale in Harrisburg.

Second place winner, for a $250 prize, was Max Isenberg, of Alexandria, and Brandon Page, Columbia Crossroads, took the third place prize of $100. Junior association secretary Connie Ohlinger sold over 600 tickets in her Berks County area to top the list of fund-raiser salesmen.

Lancaster junior member Tom McCauley was awarded a pair of plaques in honor of his two top wins at the 1985 Farm Show. McCauley claimed the junior show championships and the reserve champion ribbons of the open-class competition with his three-year-old.

Also surprised with a special award was former Holstein junior activities director Diana Bowen Mosher, who received a clock decorated with a Holstein motif and a desk lamp. Mosher left the state Holstein staff in October to pursue a career in nursing.

Junior All-Pennsylvania certificates were awarded to exhibitors whose animals had been selected to the state honor in earlier voting, and milk and fat production awards found homes with high-production owners from all corners of the state.

Speaker for the juniors luncheon was former Maryland 4-H dairy judging team member, Holstein breeder and 4-H youth exchange traveler Jerry Myers, now a professor of dairy science at Delaware Valley College. Myers previously was with the Brown Swiss and Ayrshire associations, handling both domestic and foreign classification and judging assignments. His slide presentation on international opportunities in agriculture covered Australia, New Zealand, South America and Europe.

During their business session, juniors elected distinguished junior members Kim Kriebel and Brian Kelly as their president and vice-president. Perry County members Irene Benner and Danny Albright are secretary and treasurer, with Connie Ohlinger filling the position as news reporter.

Following are the junior all-Pennsylvania awards and the winners of the junior milk and fat production contest.

Tedd Hoch and Michelle Cornman are the PHA junior division distinguished junior members for 1985. Both of the youth are from Cumberland County.

Kim Kriebel, Perry County, and Brian Kelly, Blair County, were named the distinguished junior members for the Pa. Holstein Assoc. They will represent Pennsylvania in national competition.

Dairy products fill protein needs during Lent

SOUTHAMPTON — Another spring is nearly here–as well as spring's traditional precursor, Lent. This is the time of the year that often challenges homemakers the most. Those who want to observe lenten abstinence regulations regarding meat sometimes have a difficult time planning meals.

This is the time, says Dairy Council Inc., Southampton, to remember the protein power and versatility of milk and dairy products.

Dairy products are complete proteins: in other words, they contain all of the essential amino acids indispensible for proper body functioning.

You can turn milk into menu dishes, and it will provide stick-to-ribs quality and nutrition. It can also be used in soups, for instance, chowders and bisques, in sauces, or molded right in with other ingredients in a salad.

Dairy cases will likely have attractive values on some cheeses, and this will offer the opportunity to use cheese in a variety of unique ways. Cheese fondue or cheese souffle are excellent main dishes; cheese also gives salads of all kinds a distinct texture and a different taste. Cheese is, of course, right at home with two of the food groups; fruits and vegetables, and grains.

Besides protein, dairy products provide over 70 percent of the available calcium found in the nation's food supply. Important bonuses are phosphorus, vitamins D and B12, and riboflavin.

Penns Valley 4-H Beef Club

The Penns Valley 4-H Beef Club held their first meeting on Feb. 17 on Don Hosterman's Farm in Aaronsburg.

The group elected the following officers president, Michele Hosterman; vice-president, Kevin Long; secretary, Sherri Strouse; treasurer, Lori Cahs; historian, Vicki Guisewite; news reporter, Kim Guisewite; and social chairmen, Howard Dashem and Kerri O'Hara.

Rep. Ruth C. Rudy presented a Polled Hereford Queen citation to Michelle Hosterman. John Stoner, an ag teacher at the Penns Valley Area High School, demonstrated using Rolgrow Implants

The next meeting will be held on March 24 at 1:30 p.m.

Carpenter Blasts Farm Bill; Says Block is 'no help'

ST. PAUL — The Regan-Block farm bill proposal shows no resemblence to progress or leadership and smacks of repression and exploitation, according to the leader of the nation's family organization. National Farmers Union President Cy Carpenter today said the nation instead needs a 1985 Farm Bill that will protect farm products at a fair and reasonable value, and said the marketplace--not the federal budget – will absorb any costs. Correction of today's mismanaged farm programs need not be and should not cause a drain on the federal budget, he said.

"One thing is clear from the Reagan and Block proposal: farmers will receive no leadership, no help, and little if any true understanding from their secretary of agriculture," Carpenter said.

"Lack of leadership is clearly demonstrated when projections of the administration's proposal predict that farm income will drop by $5 to $6 billion by 1988."

Carpenter said that assuming that half of current farming operations are put out of business by the administration's plan, that still leaves half with less than their present disasterously low level of income. "clearly indicating no contribution to resolving the problem and in spite of the devastation which would be inflicted upon farmers and rural communities."

The Block Farm Bill and the Reagan budget call for the gradual elimination of target price protection and deficiency payments; cuts in price support loans; elimination of the farmer held grain reserve; a halt to the use of production set-asides; phasing out the producer-financed dairy program; elimination of soil conservation programs; restrictions on the Farm Credit System; and no realistic effortr for relief of the credit crisis already being deeply felt in rural America.

Carpenter said that if farmers are provided a fair price for their product that covers the cost of production and a fair return, they can effectively compete in the U.S. economy and would need no further protection.

"It is the responsibility of government to stop or avoid the exploitation which prohibits farmers from receiving this fair price level in the marketplace," he said.

Instead, Carpenter said, the Reagan-Block farm proposal would increase the manipulation of family farmers and exploitation of their commodities for the profit of a few large corporations and the political gain of those who wish to divide rural America or get temporary attention from cheap food prices.

"The public is entitled to know that the short-sightedness and eventual damage from the lack of direction being proposed by Secretary Block would result in the destruction of family farm agriculture and can only lead to corporate control over our food supply as well as food prices. While food prices may be slightly lowered for a very temporary period, the Block outline for destruction of family agriculture can only lead to a corporate agriculture with much higher prices for consumers around the world.

"It is tragic that the secretary apparently cannot learn from either the historic contribution and record of performance of our family farm system or from the comparable disruption that resulted from the similar exploitation of petroleum resources prior to OPEC," Carpenter said.

The family farm spokesman said a real solution to the problem of effective farm programs lies not in budget exposure but in equitable treatment of farmers as contributors to American society and business, which means a fair price for farm commodities.

"Secretary Block raises the ugly head of the budget deficit, but fails to mention the terrible burden of the farm deficit, which is being borne not only by farmers but by every business in rural America and by rural banks and lending institutions as well. Farmers have lost in excess of $4 billion every month for the past three years in property value write-downs," he said.

"Block further ignores or fails to understand that simply terminating farm operations contributes nothing to resolving the problem. It does not change the volume of production, does not change the price of farm products, does not change the cost of production, and does not change farm income," he said.

pCarpenter said it is "unthinkable" that at a time when the rural economy lays far behind the nation's economic recovery, and at a time when even continuance of present farm commodity prices threatens to destroy the nation's entire rural fabric, the secretary of agriculture is the lead person in promoting a program that proposes the elimination of many needed programs and restrictions on many others.

"Current conditions have proven beyond question that even continuing with today's farm prices will destroy family agriculture," Carpenter said.

WACC Dairy Management Seminar

At a recently alumni get-together at The Williamsport Area Community College, graduates of the Dairy Herd Management program heard dairy experts talk on nutrition, soils, farm management, and changes in the field.

Thirteen of the 15 graduates of the first class (May 1984) were present for the "First Annual Dairy Herd Management Alumni Seminar." The seminar came about because of the need to keep graduates, as well as students, up-to-date with the numerous changes taking place in the field each year.

Shown in photo are: (in back) Dr. Larry Jenkins, Extension Farm Management Specialist, Pennsylvania State University; (in front, from left) Dr. Carl Brown of Birdsboro, a nutritionist; Robert Patton, Dairy Herd Management instructor at the College; Mrs. Nancy DiFiore, part-time Soils instructor at the College; Mrs. Barbara Bair, 1984 Alumnus of Mill Hall; and, Dr. Larry Chase of Cornell University, Cornell, N.Y.

All but one of the 15 graduates of the first class are now working on dairy farms. The Dairy Herd Management course, a one-year certificate program, is having a successful second year.

Chester Co. slates farm meetings

WEST CHESTER — The Chester County Cooperative Extension Service has several educational meetings scheduled in March:

Farm Financial Management - During this workshop, skills will be taught to allow farmers to identify unprofitable parts of their operations so they can take steps to either delete the enterprise, or improve their management to make the enterprise profitable.

The meeting will be held on Tuesday from 9:15 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. at the Octorara Presbyterian Church located on Rt. 10 between Parkesburg and Rt. 30. The speakers are Larry Jenkins, a farm management extension specialist from Penn State, and Roland Freund, Southeast PA farm management extension specialist.

Chester County Beef Feedlot Meeting - Presentations on beef marketing trends, feeder to finish health management trends, and beef gain economics, will comprise this evening meeting to be held at the Owen J. Roberts High School Vo-Ag Department. Speakers will be Dr. Bill Henning, Penn State Extension red meats specialists, and Dr. Tom Drake, Penn State Extension veterinarian. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and is open to all with an interest in beef cattle feeding.

Chester County Crops Day - This meeting will feature presentations on agricultural marketing options, manure management for no-till systems, soil testing updates, and tillage system comparisons. In addition, information will be available on the Chester County Crop Management Association. The program will be held on March 12, from 9:15 a.m.-3 p.m. at the East Brandywine Fire Hall in Guthriesville. The speakers are Elwood Hatley, Doug Beegle, and Lynn Hoffman, all extension agronomy specialists with Penn State. Also making presentations will be James Arnold, agricultural marketing specialist with E.F. Hutton, and Ray Pickering, director of the Chester County Agricultural Deveopment Council.

Chester County Milking School - This 2 day seminar features presentations on mastitis, milk secretion, proper milking technique and procedures, milking machine trouble-shooting and maintenance and other related topics. The milking school will be held at the Cochranville Fire Hall on March 14, and March 15. 1985 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. each day. The milking school is an excellent training opportunity for young men and women who will be employed on a dairy farm as summer help, but have little experience with milking or dairy cows. The school would also be beneficial as a refresher to dairymen and herdsmen responsible for mastitis control, equipment cleanliness and milking systems.

Contact the Chester County Extension Service for reservations and more informations on any of these programs.

Franklin Co. Ag Extension Officers

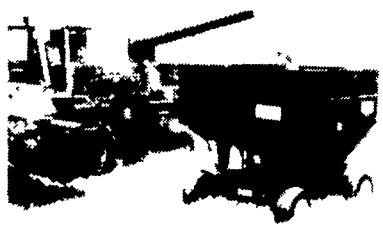
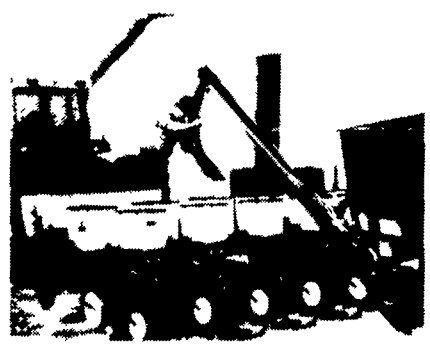
Available For Spring Delivery At Binkley & Hurst Bros.

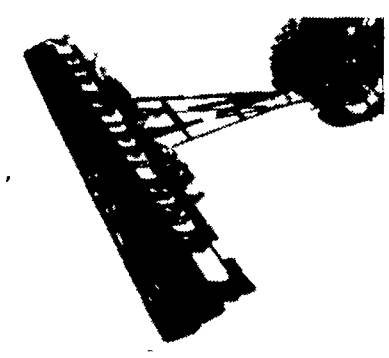


Grain Boxes For convenient transport and fast unloading of free-flowing materials, UM grain boxes feature seamless, sloping sides and dumping doors with easily adjusting flow control. Many sizes available.



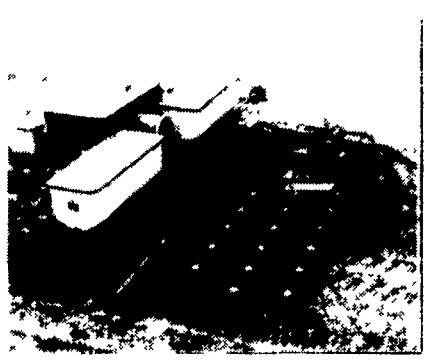
Grain Body Augers Hydraulic augers for grain transport beds allow grain, feed, seed and fertilizer to be handled in bulk, which is much less expensive than bags and eliminates tiresome hand operations. The savings in costs is often enough to pay for the auger in a year.

Grain Box Augers To speed handling of grain, feed, seed and fertilizer, hydraulic grain box augers make it easy to dispatch materials. The need for bags and shovels is eliminated.

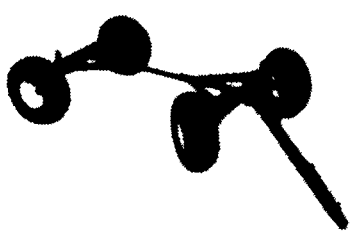


Rolling Harrow™ soil conditioner With tandem rollers of spiral blades, the Rolling Harrow soil conditioner provides excellent secondary preparation of seedbeds. The unit hitches to any tillage tool to give secondary tillage in a single pass.

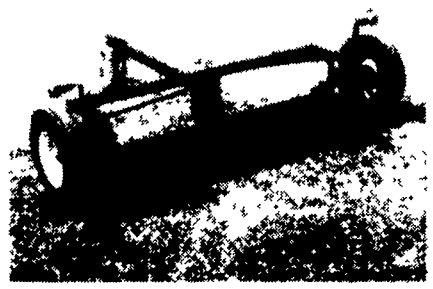
Custom wheels and rims Unverferth makes wheels and rims to customer specifications for a variety of industrial or agricultural vehicles, and in a variety of sizes.



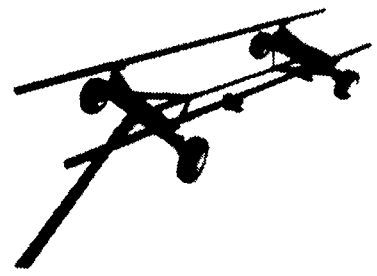
Culti-planter™ Combining S-tines and Rolling Harrow conditioner, Culti-planter permits secondary seedbed preparation and planting in a single pass. It may be combined with a corn planter or grain drill.



Running Gears Available in models supporting 8, 10, 12, 15 and 18-ton loads, UM running gears with precisely aligned axles trail straight and smooth after years of use under capacity loads.



Towmobile™ The Towmobile™ tractor and implement transporter enables one person with a truck to transport farm machinery safely and easily. It can move 2WD tractors with up to two attached implements, and can also move combines.



Header Transport A special running gear with adjustable chassis, the UM header transport makes storing and transporting combine headers convenient. Fully adjustable to fit most popular corn heads and grain platforms.

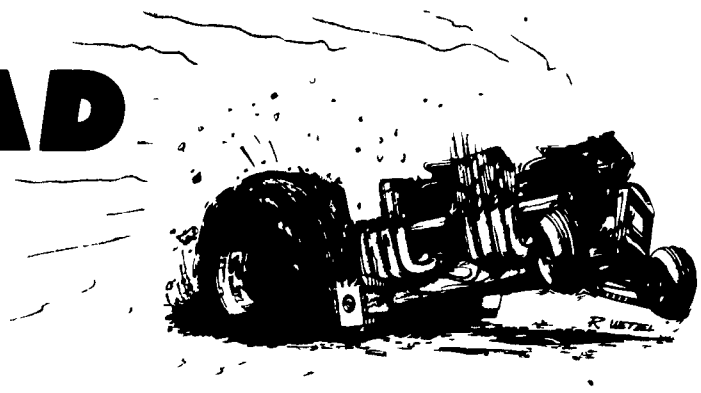
WITH case IH



"I just returned from our CASE-IH introductory meeting in Las Vegas. I am convinced that the management of Tenneco and J.I. Case is totally committed to the farm machinery business. Whether it is an IH or CASE tractor we will be able to provide you with parts and service for the practical life of the unit. CASE-IH will provide warranty on all IH equipment sold before the merger and on everything we will sell in the future.

CHARLIE HOOBER

At this meeting, CASE-IH management also shared their plans for future product improvements. And I can tell you that I am excited about what is coming, because there was no question that CASE-IH will be doing everything within their power to give you - the farmer - quality, State-of-the-art products at affordable prices. As a former IH dealer, I can say that this was the best possible merger for Hoober's and you - our customer - because now we have the same reliable products at very competitive prices. Since I've seen what this merger between CASE-IH will mean for our future together, I look forward to continuing to provide you with the best parts and service at the most affordable prices in the East."

A more valuable disk chisel.

All disk chisels can save topsoil But White Farm s 435 Conservation Chisel Plow also saves time and money

Versatile concave disks up-front. Individually mounted 22 inch blades are hydraulically controlled to let you determine the amount of residue that remains on the surface Disks can be raised completely out of the ground for maximum conservation, or lowered for maximum tillage

Big 4" x 6" frames. Our steel box beams have 25 percent more weld area at every joint than competitors 4" x 4" beams

Chisel shanks every twelve inches. Three ranks of chisels spaced twelve inches apart on a long 90 inch frame help maintain uniform tillage and prevent residue build up The 2" x 29" spring loaded chisels raise up and over obstacles - up to 11 inches

Come in and experience for yourself the quality and value built into every 435 Conservation Chisel Plow

Thank you!

Each year, International Harvester selected a group of XL Dealers...those dealers that best represent the high standards and expectations of the company We are pleased to have been named an XL Dealer for 1984

Among the many factors affecting this recognition are the quality of service equipment, personnel training, parts inventory, supply capabilities, business management and the ability to reach certain sales goals set throughout the year.

While sales alone do not make an XL Dealer, they are of special importance because they reflect the support that you, the farmers of this community, have given to this dealership and the people who stand behind it. In response to the confidence you've placed in us, we pledge to continue improving our dealership and our service to you

Today, as our dealership expands to handle both Case and International equipment, we further pledge to support you with the same quality of service on our new broader line of products.

YOUR XL DEALER

Herd health, management are topics at Cattlemen's 'Spring Fling'

BOILING SPRINGS – An intensive beef cattle conference, held in conjunction with the Pa. Cattlemen's Association's Spring Fling, will emphasize contemporary issues facing cattle feeders as well as purebred and commercial cow-calf operators. The conference is scheduled for Saturday, March 16, during the three-day, Mar. 15-17 event to be held at the Allenberry Resort in Boiling Springs, Cumberland County.

Morning sessions will deal with losses in weaned, shipped and newly arrived feeder cattle. According to T.R. Drake, extension veterinarian at Penn State University, "There has been alot of data accumulated in recent years on how losses in weaned and transported cattle can be decreased. Death losses are an important part of the problem, but reduction in subsequent performance–reduced feed efficiency, reduced weight gain and cattle which require health treatment after arriving at a feedlot, all markedly decrease feedlot profit potential."

Dr. Clair Engle, extension animal scientist, summarized, "One of the ways of reducing these losses is by weaning the cattle at least three weeks before shipment, and by vaccinating for diseases that cause losses, such as IBR and various shipping fever complexes." A panel discussion composed of a cow-calf operator, auction manager, and cattle feeder will also discuss their programs with regard to reducing these losses.

The morning session will also be devoted to a discussion of the reasons for decreased consumer comsumption of meat and dairy products, and new nutritive information about animal products in the human diet, discussed by L. L. Wilson, professor of dairy and aniaml science and W.R. Henning, extension meat scientist.

Following a special Cattlemen's luncheon, two sessions will be held simultaneously; one for cattle feeders and buyers, and one for purebred or commercial cow-calf operators. Topics to be discussed include state and national beef promotion/education efforts, changes in the USDA grading system, up-date on growth promotants and feed additives and computerizing the feedlot business, with special attention given to least-cost ration formulation, and feeding/marketing programs for the small-scale cattle feeder.

Of interest to the purebred or commercial cowman will be the use of fescue and warm season perennials, creep grazing and pasture rotation, field results with brassicas, mineral supplementations for a spring-calving cow herd, chemical castration and performance records to select young herd sires.

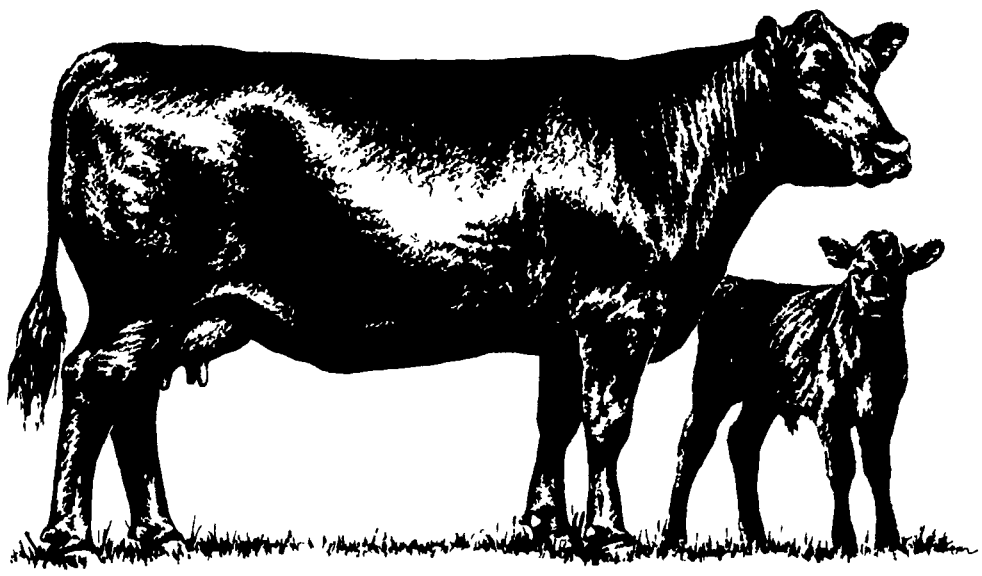
The Saturday beef conference and luncheon registratgion is $12 per person, or $22 for two persons from the same farm. Several exhibits by commercial companies and beef promotion/educational materials will be on display and distributed.

The Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Conference and Beef Spring Fling is an inclusive weekend of events, March 15-17 at Allenberry Resort including two nights lodging, Friday night dancing to the Rohrbach Orchestra, two Cattlemen's breakfasts, intensive beef conference, Cattlemen's lunch, exhibits, Cattlemen's banquet with nationally known humorist Jerry Palen of Laramie, Wyoming, Saturday evening dancing, plus much more.

The Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Banquet will begin at 7 p.m. on Saturday following a social hour. Highlights of the banquet will include speaker Jerry Palen, the crowning of the 1985 Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Queen and presentation of the Cattleman of the Year Award. Music for dancing will follow the banquet.

Cattlemen and interested individuals may register for a "package deal" or ala carte events. For a complete brochure on the event, write to Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association 862 Webster Drive, State College, PA 16801 or to The Department of Dairy and Animal Science, 324 W.L. Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802 or call 814-863-3667

The March 15-17 conference and weekend if sponsored by the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and Pennsylvania Beef Council in cooperation with the Pennsylvania State University and the Pennsylvania Meat Marketing Program.



$6100 boar tops American Yorkshire Club Conference

ORANGEBURG, SC – A "standing room only" crowd recently attended the American Yorkshire Club's 1985 Winter Type Conference in Orangeburg, South Carolina.

Highlights of the Conference included the Yorkshire 500 Giveaway and an excellent group of tested boars. This Conference marked the first time that the reserve grand champion boar overall came from the tested boar class.

The sale totaled $78,690. Eight tested boars commanded a sale total of $16,300 for an average of $2,037 each. Forty-one regular boars sold for $41,250 and averaged $1,006 each. Five bred gilts sold for $2,875 and averaged $575 each. And 45 open gilts were sold for $18,265 and averaged $406 each.

The Type Conference show was exceptionally strong, with perhaps the highest quality and greatest depth throughout all classes that has ever been exhibited at a national show.

The grand champion boar was shown by George Watson of Hillsboro, KY and sold to G & B Farms (NC), Jones & Moorman (GA), and Thad Sharp, Jr. (NC) for $6100. The boar, a June 3, son of WGW3 Ernie 52-15, reached 230 lbs. in 141 days, had 1.2 B.F. and 7.3 Lion Eye.

The reserve grand champion Boar overall was also the grand champion boar of the tested boar class. This outstanding animal was shown by Chuck Olsen of Irene, SD and sold to Gary Huisman of IA and Double J Hog Farm of CO for $5500. A son of JGR 2 Cruiser 26-5, he had been tested at the South Dakota Test Station where he recorded an ADG of 3.06, .69 B.F., and 5.5 Lion Eye.

The grand champion bred gilt honors went to Roger Schaad of Beverly, OH on SFR4 Miss Flash 37-14, a daughter of SFR1 All Star 42-8. She sold to C.W. Brunson, III of SC for $550.

The grand champion gilt was exhibited by Bill Funderburg of Greenville, OH. She was probed at 1.4 B.F., 6.2 Lion Eye, and reached 230 lbs. in 145 days. She is sired by WGW3 Profit 47-6. She was sold to Eastern Carolina Breeders of NC for $1,500.

Other noteworthy events at the conference were the Annual Meeting of the American Yorkshire Club, where Gene Isler of Columbus, Ohio was re-elected president of the Board of Directors, and Bruce Leman of Roanoke, Illinois was elected vice president.

A complete summary of the conference will appear in the March issue of the Yorkshire Journal.

"We've not seen huge crowds like this since the 'good old days' of the mid-70's," said AYC executive secretary Glenn Conatser. "This conference is truly a bright spot and may prove that we're turning the corner economically to a brighter swine future," he concluded.

The Residue Avoidance Program is working with farmers to find new ways to prevent contamination of feed. This is the final installment in a series regarding the success of this program. Whether you buy commercial feed or mix your own, it's important to read labels and know each active ingredient. If you raise your own corn and spray a field with pesticides, those chemicals may find a way into your animals. Testing feed for residues can avoid problems. Some manufacturers and producers periodically test feed. So, buy from sellers that will stand behind you, should a problem occur.

Recordkeeping helps in tracking back the source of a residue problem. Records can be detailed, noting the source, lot number, date received, dates used, and the identity of the animals given the feed. Recordkeeping can be as simple as marking on a calendar the name of the drug, it's withdrawal time, and the animal's identity.

At the slaughterhouse, USDA inspectors test carcasses for drugs. For example, with a test called STOP, which stands for Swab Test on Premises, inspectors check for antibiotics whenever clinical signs suggest infection or drug treatment. STOP testing for antibiotics is done in addition to routine monitoring. With STOP, inspectors have an answer overnight. If it shows that antibiotics are present, then tissue samples are sent to the laboratory. If violative levels of antibiotics are confirmed, the carcass is condemned.

The STOP test, first used on dairy cows, led to a decline in drug residues in cull dairy cows. Now, USDA uses the antibiotic test on all species. On-the-spot tests for sulfa also are planned for use at the slaughterhouse.

Similar tests are commercially available for use on the farm. The Live Animal Swab Test detects antibiotics in urine of live animals USDA is working to provide a sulfa-sensitive test for producers and veterinarians. Such tests show that drugs have been used without leaving illegal residues.

One way to reduce the chance for violatives is to allow only well-informed persons to handle medication. A trained person reads labels and strictly adheres to withdrawal times. Limiting the number of people handling medication also helps avoid mistakes. Recording which animals receive drugs also avoids accidental overdosing. While recordkeeping helps in tracing back problems, planning helps avoid them.

Read labels to be sure products are safe for livestock, then follow instructions. Use all chemicals with care and don't re-use containers, especially if they've been filled with hazardous substances. Dispose of empty containers according to instructions on the label

As you see, residue avoidance requires action every day...but residue prevention means safe, wholesome livestock and meat products.

'Quads' born in Chester Co. goat herd

NEW LONDON — As you walk toward Joyce and Bill Bohmier's barn at the New London Airport in New London, Chester County, the roaring of an accelerating Cessna drowns out any sound from inside the barn. But step through that barn door and suddenly, the sound of the plane is drowned out be the bleating of does and kids.

Does and kids? That's right, does and lots of kids. It's kidding time in the Bohmier's herd of registered Alpine goats and the first pen inside the barn door is a showstopper! One doe named Fille, is surrounded by four lively, lovable little kids--all her own! Quadruplets are rare in goats, and to have quadruplets born in a herd is a thrill. But to have all four kids healthy, and eating and drinking, is simply spectacular.

Joyce gives the credit for the kids survival to two factors. The first factor was the stamina and hardiness of the mother, Fille. The second factor was Joyce's care and concern to see each kid given a fair chance to live.

Commenting on her outstanding doe, Joyce said that Fille produces 3500 lbs. of milk a year, which is quite high for a goat. Since recently freshening, Fille feeds all four hungry mouths and still gives 2 quart of milk to her owner.

Fille is just a part of the Privet Herd, a name that Bohmier's chose for their registered Alpine herd when they started in the goat business 10 years ago. Starting with somewhat common stock, the Bohmier's have increased the genetic potential and conformation of their herd by using quality bucks and choosing wise matings.

Goats have many advantages, says Joyce, but one of the greatest advantages is the benefit a goat can be to a family who has limited acreage. She feels that a family who would not have enough land to raise a dairy heifer or cow, could easily raise dairy goats.

Joyce would like to start a 4-H goat club in the New London area, using her years of experience in the goat industry to help young people get started successfully with a goat project. Chester County Dairy Agent, David Swartz, commented that goats can be a nice project for a young person, especially if they have never cared for animals before since the goat is generally easy to care for, is productive in providing milk, and does not require a large investment to house the animal or animals.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of a 4-H goat club in the southern Chester County area, should contact Joyce at her home.

Joyce also mentioned that she would be glad to show the "quads" and their happy mother to anyone that stopped to visit.

Red Rose Beef Club to meet

LANCASTER — Youth interested in feeding beef cattle are invited to attend the reorganizational meeting of the Red Rose 4-H Beef Club at 7:30 p.m. on March 6 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

Election of officers will highlight the meeting activities and members will receive project books.

To be eligible for membership in the club, members must be between the ages of 8 and 18, and must own their own steer-preferably as soon as possible. They have the responsibility of caring for and feeding their own steers and keeping records on their steer. They also have the opportunity of showing their steers, and eventually selling them at one of the 4-H actions.

For more information about the 4-H Club program, contact the Penn State Extension Service which is an affirmative action equal opportunity educational institution

Available on all N-Series rotary Gleaner combines, the chaff spreader provides a uniform layer of crop residues.

Chaff spreader available on A-C combines

MILWAUKEE, Wisc. – A new chaff spreader leads the array of features recently introduced for Gleaner combines for 1985, according to Tom Stadtmueller, Gleaner combine marketing manager of Allis-Chalmers.

"The chaff spreader is available on an optional basis for all N-Series rotary Gleaner combines and was introduced in response to farmer demand," he said.

"Larger headers, windrows and corn heads can leave a concentration of crop residue material behind the machine. By spreading the material with the chaff spreader, conservation farming practices, fertilizer and chemical application and seeding can be accomplished more easily," he said.

"In addition, heavy layers of crop residues can use up nitrogen, so spreading the residues helps eliminate unsightly strips which may appear during the growing season."

Stadtmueller pointed out that the normal 5 ft-wide discharge area can be tripled with the chaff spreader, which takes advantage of the N-Series' unique upper duct air blast (no mechanical drives). The chaff spreader tailboard fins are adjustable for various spreading widths and the tailboard is adjustable up and down for different spreading profiles.

Other new features and improvements for 1985 include:

- Plastic tine pickup reels (standard on all pickup reels except rice header), which help prevent crop wrapping and reduce damage if the tine comes into contact with the sickle.
- Narrow spaced sickle and guard package, which is offered for Gleaner combine owners who desire to replace the conventional 3-in. spaced sickle and guard with the new 1-1/2 in. spacing for soybean harvest.
- Short dividers, which are available for Series 3 flex headers as a substitution for the standard long floating dividers.
- Cutterbar sweeps, which are designed for short crop conditions and assist the pickup reel in sweeping material from the cutterbar to the header auger.
- Concave Door, which has a new forged hinge and roller latch to improve reliability and improve door latching. Also, a new concave assembly includes a wire grate to decrease potential plugging. Chrome bars on the front four bars improve wearability.
- A new Hydro Mark X "back-to-back" transmission, which replaces the present hydro transmission for easier service, increased reliability and simpler parts assembly.

For more details on Gleaner combines for 1985, see your local Allis-Chalmers dealer or write Allis-Chalmers Combine Division, P.O. Box 1099, Independence, Missouri 64051.

Farmer Boy honors top swine producers

HARRISBURG – Two top swine producing farms were honored by Farmer Boy Ag, Inc., at the Pa. Pork Congress on Feb. 21. The Myerstown-based builder of swine and poultry systems annually reviews all farms with Farmer Boy-installed facilities and chooses the top two for recognition.

This year's first-place winner was Amos Lynn Hoover of Red Hill Farm, Denver, who weaned an average of 21 pigs per sow at his 400-sow farrow-to-finish operation. However received a plaque and $300 gift certificate to Farmer Boy.

In second place was Middle Creek Swine Breeders of Denver. Raising breeding stock on its DeKalb crossing farm, Middle Creek averaged 20.6 pigs per sow with its 600-sow herd.

Founded in 1978 by Myerstown swine farmer Leon Hoover, Farmer Boy Ag, Inc., has designed and built units for more than 12,000 sows and 40,000 finishing head.

Hiniker cultivators aimed at reduced tillage

MANKATO, Minn. – The Hiniker Company has introduced a new "4300" line of field cultivators with important structural innovations designed to work efficiently through the heaviest soil and trash conditions.

The new field cultivators feature an expanded frame with four, rather than three bars. "In addition to providing more strength and soil penetration force", said Vince Tomlonovic, Hiniker's vice president of marketing, "this larger frame allows far more trash tumbling space. It allows wider spacing between shanks and over two feet of clearance between the frame and ground."

For strength, each frame is made 3" x 4" tubular steel and each shank of 5/8" steel. The rockshaft is constructed of 5 9/16" (O.D.) steel pipe with tandem walking beam axles on the main frame. Massive 7/16" wire compression springs exert up to 140 lbs. of penetration force per shank, yet "trip" to allow 14" of clearance when obstacles are encountered. The heavyduty 3-bar tongue features a swivel open-and-closed combination hitch. Tire and wheels are included.

Hiniker's 4300 Field Cultivators are available in 25½' - 37½' widths. Wing rockshafts are made of 3½" (O.D.) tubular steel and include single wheels, with optional tandem wheels available. Wing folds are hydraulic with a 12"-stroke rephasing wheel lift system designed for rugged use and dependable performance.

The '4300 series' was designed especially for the needs of reduced tillage. We want customers to enjoy the benefits of reduced tillage without the plug-ups and breakdowns too often encountered," Tomlonovic concluded.

For further information contact: The Hiniker Company, P.O. Box 3407, Mankato, MN 56001.

Hiniker's 4300 Series cultivators allow non-stop cultivation through the toughest soils and heaviest trash.

Kuhn introduces larger Gyrorake

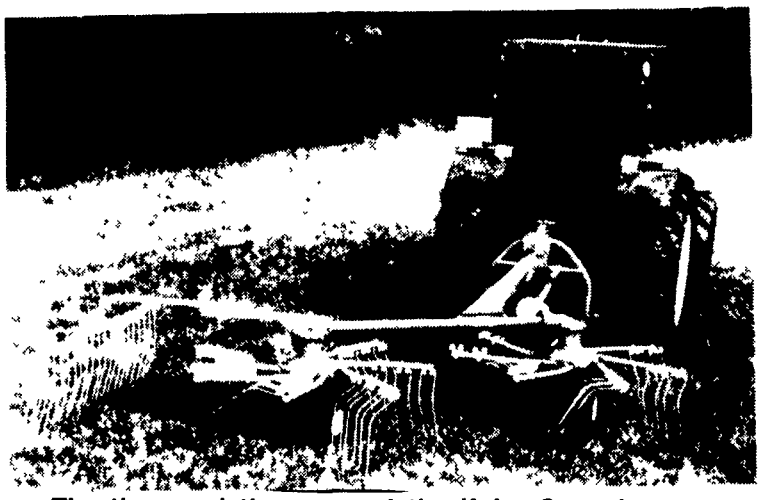
VERNON, N.Y. – The need for gentle raking action and the advantage of side delivery are highlighted with a new larger size Kuhn Gyrorake.

Known as the Model GA 402N, this twin rotor gyrorake has a gentle side delivery action that guards against leaf loss, roping, or stone collecting – common windrowing problems. At the same time its heavy-duty 7-tine-arms-per rotor ensure strong, dependable raking even in heavy grass or legume crops.

This gyrorake's effective working width of 13 feet is expandable to 23 feet with double windrowing--a practice that provides ideal windrows for large capacity round balers.

Tines and tine arms are controlled by centrally mounted cams with all moving parts completely enclosed in greased rotor housing to ensure minimum wear.

Large support wheels give the unit solid support on rough ground and can be raised or lowered to give correct working height. A new articulated 3-point frame provides optimum mobility while working, and maneuverability when locked into a transport position and now gives stronger support throughout the whole machine.



The tines and tine arms of the Kuhn Gyrorake ensure strong, dependable raking even in heavy grass or legume crops.

The GA 402N Gyrorake complements the rest of the Kuhn line which includes smaller models with working widths ranging from 7½ feet to nearly 10 feet.

Further information on the Kuhn line of Gyrorakes may be obtained by contacting Kuhn Farm Machinery, Inc., P.O. Box 224, Vernon, New York 13476.

Purina taps 500 dealers for horse program

ST.LOUIS, Mo. – More than 500 horse feed dealers across the country have been recognized by Ralston Purina Company as Certified Horse Advisors, specially qualified to address the specific needs of horse owners, from nutritional guidance to horse management.

To earn this certification from Purina, these dealers and at least one of their employees have completed a comprehensive training program on the horse industry, equine physiology and nutrition, feeding programs and horse management.

In addition to stocking a full line of horse feeds and supplies, Purina Certified Horse Advisors are qualified to answer questions, evaluate the nutrient value of various feedstuffs and design a nutritionally balanced feeding program based on a horse's performance activities and the owner's feed form preference.

"The nutrient requirements of one horse can differ dramatically from those of another, depending on the performance demands placed on the horse," according to Dennis Spalding, horse products manager for Purina. "A race horse's nutritional needs, for example, are quite different from those of an open brood mare."

Certified Horse Advisors will work with farm and stable managers, veterinarians, trainers or farriers, if necessary, to be sure a feeding program is coordinated with a horse's overall management program and training regimen, Spalding noted.

Field-drying forage should be this easy.

The longer legume forage lies in windrows drying, the more it loses weight, protein, nutritious leafs, and digestibility.

That's money lost.

Dry it faster. With Beacon Fast-Dry Forage Conditioner.

You'll get better forage—and more of it—out of the field faster. You'll also reduce yellowing of new growth, crop loss, and damage to the forage by weather and equipment.

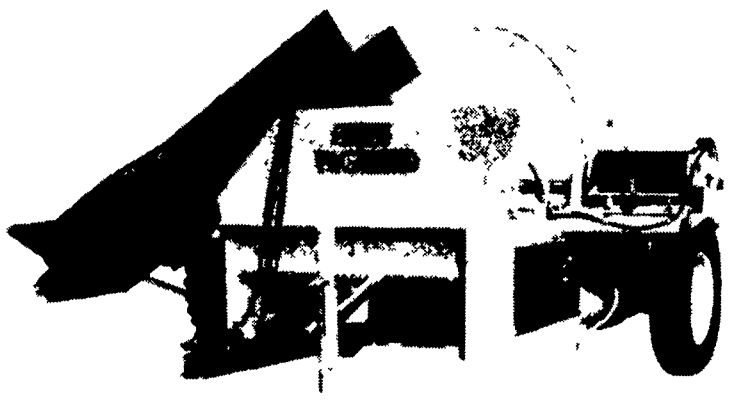
Kelly offers new silage bagger

BLAIR, Nebr. — After six years of developing and building silage baggine machines, Blair Manufacturing is introducing the Kelly Ryan Big Bagger. A spokesman for the company says the Kelly Ryan Big Bagger is designed, manufactured, and priced for any size feeding or dairy operation.



The Kelly Ryan Big Bagger is a low-cost sealed silage alternative.

The Kelly Ryan Big Bagger will bag any crop as fast as it can be cut, pressing it into an airtight bag to eliminate oxygen for virtually no storage loss, regardless of moisture content. When the silage is ready to feed, it has a "harvest fresh" palatability that cattle really take to.

The Kelly Ryan Big Bagger is much simplified over previous versions marketed. A retractable loading conveyor adjusts for feed flow into the machine as well as for travel. A heavy-duty drive chain and sprockets run in a constant oil bath for long, trouble-free service. When the 8 ft. x 150 ft. bag (155 tons) is filled you simply seal the end for airtight storage. As silage is taken from the bag for feeding it may be resealed after each use. A 9 ft. x 135 ft. model is also available, as well as shorter bags

The Kelly Ryan Big Bagger is offered over a wide area by a rapidly expanding dealer network. For further information contact: Kelly Ryan Big Bagger by Ryco, Inc., in care of Blair Manufacturing, Blair, Nebraska 68008.

Dairy farmers receive $13.34 for January milk

NEW YORK — Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during January 1985 will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $13.34 per hundredweight.

Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson also stated that the price was $13.38 in December 1984 and $12.99 in January 1984. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive plan does not affect the uniform price for the month of January.

A total of 16,627 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Areaw with 945,711,201 poundsd of milk during January 1985. This was a decrease of 3.1 percent (about 31 million pounds) from last year.

The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $129,846,023.97. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) used 401,159,031 pounds of milk for Class I, 42.4 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For January 1985, handlers paid $14.97 per hundredweight (32.2 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $14.81 a year ago.

The balance (544,552,170 pounds or 57.6 percent) was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $12.43 hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For January 1985, there was a price differential of 16.3 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

York dairymen honored by Atlantic breeders

LANCASTER – York County dairymen were honored for having high producing herds this past year at the 21st annual District 6 Meeting for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative members held recently at the York County 4-H Center.

All herds were at least 10 percent above the state average for milk or butterfat production last year, while at least two-thirds of the cows in these herds are progeny of Atlantic sires. Awards were presented by Dave Zimmerman, Atlantic's Field Supervisor for this area.

District 6 Director Paul King of Delta, informed members of the retirement of David Yoder after 41 years of service to Atlantic and the AI Industry. He also announced the appointment of Harry Roth as the new General Manager. The emphasis of this new management will still be the same-membership programs.

Following a new film showing Atlantic's facilities and service programs and a discussion of current popular sires, management representative Gary Heckman of Lancaster, pointed out that the Cooperative is dedicated to giving members the service they want by emphasizing quality technician and direct-herd service in the entire member area.

John Deere extends tractor warranty

MOLINE, Ill. – John Deere has extended the warranty on the company's 50 Series 4-wheel drive tractors with the engine and power train components warranted against defects in materials or workmanship for up to three years or 3,000 hours of operation. Previously, those tractors were warranted for one year with engine and power train warranted for two years.

The basic warrarty covers all parts of the tractor except tires, tubes, radios and batteries for 24 months or 2,000 hours of operation. (Tires, tubes, radios and batteries are covered by separate warranties.)

Additionally, the engine and power train are warranted against any defect in materials or workmanship for a total of 36 months or 3,000 hours of operation.

The extended warranty reflects Deere's confidence in the improved 4-wheel-drive tractors being offered today, according to a company spokesman.

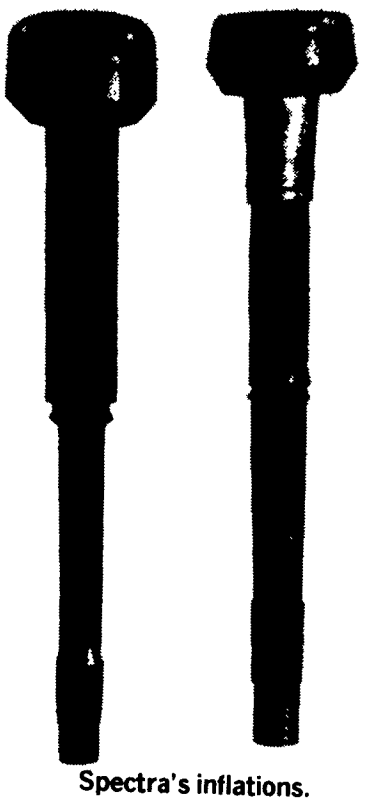
Two new inflations from Spectra



Spectra's inflations.

Spectra International Inc. 327 Main Avenue, Norwalk, Connecticut, introduces two popular inflations: The Bou-Matic type RIA inflation with blue sleeve fits the Bou-Matic stainless steel shell. The DeLaval 01 liner fits DeLaval's 06 Shell.

The RIA is a single-piece narrow-bore liner featuring a soft, snug fitting mouth and the blue reinforcement sleeve which lengthens inflation life and prevents inflation creep. The 01 liner is formulated with a high ratio of snythetic to natural rubber giving the inflation durability and suppleness. The RIA and the 01 are recommended for 1200 individual milkings.

Hart-Carter introduces award-winning cultivator

MENDOTA, Ill. – A unique high speed, soil and energy conserving, ground driven rotary cultivator is now available in the U.S. from Hart-Carter Co. of Mendota, Illinois. Called Dyna-Drive, the tool employs speed differential between two rotating shafts which, when pulled through the field, leave seedbed that offers excellent wind and water erosion control, good germination qualities while reducing energy costs. Dyna-Drive was one of the 1984 winners of Implement and Tractors first design award competition.

The Dyna-Drive is unlike either conventional rotary or tine-type cultivators. It requires no PTO, no gear box and virtually no maintenance. The two rotating tine shafts are ground driven, turning in 3-1 ratio–the front slower, the rear 3 times faster. In effect, the front rotor tines provide a plowing, or lifting action and the rear tines churn the soil. It is estimated the tines will last about six times longer than conventional cultivator points.

The tines on each shaft have spiraling and offset configurations lifting soil upwards, leaving no pathways for wind and water to wash away the soil. The tool leaves clods and trash on top with small soil particles beneath to enclose seeds and provide good germination. Depth control is easily achieved from 1½" to 5½". There are four models ranging in width from 8 to 16 ft.

The Dyna-Drive has been widely used and acclaimed in Europe as a one-pass seedbed tool, often being used right behind the combine to prepare the soil for a second planting. For literature contact Hart-Carter Co., 1501 1st Ave., Mendota, IL 61342 . Phone 815/ 539-9371

Case unveils new products, programs to 2,200 dealers

RACINE, WI, — Tenneco's J I Case unit unveiled its new "Case International" agricultural equipment product line during recent meetings with 2,200 dealers representing the combined Case and International Harvester agricultural equipment organization.

In his first address to this new dealer network, Case President and Chief Executive Officer Jerome K. Green commented on the state of the agricultural industry and the role to be played by Case International.

"Our industry expects more mergers of the kind we're going through. Our advantage is that we already have joined our forces and consolidated our strengths," Green said. He noted that the new Case International organization combines the strengths of Case's leadership in tractor technology with the respected IH dealer network and line of agricultural equipment.

The name of the overall company reamins J I Case, asit has been for more than 140 years, Case officials emphasized.

Case announced details on financing programs, new colors and graphics, parts support and warranty programs for the Case International product line.

Effective March 1 through May 31, 1985, several financing options and rebates will be available through Case, said John A. Borden, executive vice president, marketing. Separate programs apply to tractors, combines and implements, as well as used equipment.

For tractors, combines and other agricultural machines and attachments, 8.8 percent (annual percentage rate) financing up to 48 or 60 months is available through J I Case Credit Corporation. Or, waiver of interest until January 1, 1986, is available plus cash rebates up to $4,350 ($5,700 Canadian) on all inventory except new identity products.

Without special financing, cash rebates up to $13,000 ($17,100 Canadian) on tractors are available. A 10 percent cash rebate on all combines, plus other agricultural machines and attachments will be given in lieu of special financing arrangements.

Available on some used equipment is 10 percent A.P.R. financing or a September 1, 1985, interest waiver, Borden added.

New colors and graphics for the Case International product line were also unveiled. Dealers first saw a Case Model 2096 tractor featuring a major IH hallmark–the characteristic IH red–along with the traditional Case black stripe, now with silver accents. This design will be on all new-production agricultural equipment.

The new logo retains the best of both traditions, putting the two established logos–Case and IH–side by side. Dealer signage will feature the combined trademarks.

Case announced steps to increase inventory at existing parts depots to ensure replacement parts support for the Case International organization. Case has acquired much of the former IH parts distribution network and will retain its strengths, officials said.

"One of the most important gauges by which the success of this merger will be measured will be the parts support we provide to the farmer," said Frank T. Steck, vice president, parts marketing.

To help provide that support, a new initial parts order program has been established with terms designed to help dealers immediately stock parts they did not carry prior to the acquisition, Steck said.

All warranty programs for currently inventoried Case and International Harvester products continue, and all warranties on purchased units are in effect, Case officials said. The Case International warranty for all agricultural equipment units is one year or 1,500 hours, whichever comes first. (Case International dealers have complete warranty details.)

Replacement parts will be warranted under the new Case International warranty. New and remanufactured parts are warranted for six months.

Case International dealers will continue to offer the popular Assured Availability program. Under the program, a farmer gains use of a replacement unit if the necessary parts for his tractor are not available within 48 hours during the growing season. Assured Availability is in effect during the first year of warranty for over 40-hp tractors entering the warranty period between February 1 and December 31, 1985.

The TOPS™ (Tailored Owner Protection System) is now available for purchase on Case 94 and 96 Series tractors and all new color Case International tractors. TOPS is the most comprehensive extended repair protection coverage in the industry. This optional coverage supplements the basic Case warranty of 12 months or 1,500 hours, whichever comes first. Sixteen different coverage plans offer flexibility to meet a customer's specific needs.

Combination of the two field organizations brings the total number of North American outlets to about 2,000, significantly expanding the reach of the original distribution networks. All dealers now will offer a full line of tractors, combines and farm implements bearing the Case International nameplate.

"Case now has a North American dealer organization second to none from the standpoint of quality products, reliable parts availability, outstanding service and convenient location," Borden said.

New Case International dealers carry two-and four-wheel drive agricultural tractors up to 400 gross engine horsepower. Over 95-hp units are of the Case design, and feature the Case Intelligence Center, the industry's most comprehensive electronic monitoring system. Under 95-hp models include both Case and IH designs.

Case state-of-the-art diesel engines, recently introduced in the Case 96 Series tractors, will gradually be phased into all of the company's agricultural equipment.

Crop harvesting and production equipment includes EarlyRiser CycloR Air planters and Axial-FlowR combines. The unique Early Riser row unit design allows planting in minimum and notill conditions. Axial-Flow combines are available in selfpropelled, rice, hillside and pull-type models.

Headquartered in Racine, WI, Case is a worldwide manufacturer and marketer of agricultural and construction equipment.

Tenneco Inc., with headquarters in Houston, is a $15 billion, multi-industry company with major operations in integrated oil, natural gas, pipelines, agricultural and construction equipment, automotive components, chemicals, shipbuilding, packaging, life insurance and agricultural/land management.

Farm Talk

by

Jerry Webb

It's got to be frustrating for American farmers to be continually bombarded with the world hunger problem while their own granaries are overflowing. That same frustration is felt by humanitarians, relief organizations and just plain folks who can't understand why this country has a food surplus problem while other human beings are literally starving to death.

World hunger is not a new problem. It's been around for decades, but it's getting worse. There was a time when the movement focused on hunger and malnutrition, but now it deals with the stark realities of starvation. People are actually starving to death in a number of third world countries, and it's happending with increasing regularity.

There is a paradox in all of this that begs solution. All of that American-grown food, stockpiled, some of it rotting on the ground because there is not acceptable marketing alternative. And that says nothing about the idle capacity on American farms-acres and acres that are not producing, or are producing at reduced capacity. And yet millions go to bed hungry with no hope for a next meal and no future except starvation.

In its simplest terms, the world hunger problem reduces itself to a mass of people who have nothing, including food, and another mass that has too much of everything, including food. Included in the latter group are the farmers, not just here in America but in many countries, who overproduce the economic needs of their own people. And so there are surpluses--stockpiles of food and feed that cannot be marketed at a reasonable price.

It would be obvious to suggest that some world body simply gather up the food that's in surplus and supply it to the starving people. That sounds easy until you consider the stumbling blocks along the way.

First of all, the farmers who grow that food must be compensated. It's grossly unfair to even suggest that they produce at a loss so that hungry people can eat.

Farmers in this country are growing corn, soybeans, wheat, rice, a whole list of commodities at prices at or below the break-even point. It's obvious that a large segment of America's production agriculture is in serious financial trouble, trouble that could be eliminated if crop and livestock prices were improved even slightly.

So it is ludicrous to suggest to an American farmer who is already in financial trouble that he should give away his output. No, someone else must buy that output at a fair price and then find a way to give it to hungry people. And that is a monumental task.

Even now food that is given to the Ethiopian hunger relief effort faces a treacherous journey before it reaches its hoped-for destination, and much of it is siphoned off along the way through graft, greed, political maneuvering and outright thievery.

It will take a humanitarian effort on a scale beyond anything that has been attempted so far to even begin to solve the world hunger problem. There are many experts who believe that it is in fact unsolvable, that the more food supplied, the more people produced, and the more serious the shortage. There is plenty of evidence to support that point of view.

The only real solution to world hunger rests with education and technology. The starving nations have got to learn how to grow their own food in amounts adequate for their own populations. Or they've got to produce something else of value that can be bartered for food.

If you go back far enough in the history of America, you can also find starving people at Plymouth Rock, Jamestown, and wherever else those first colonies began. Decades passed before our early settlers were able to do more than just subsist. But they learned to farm the land, growing cereals, vegetables and livestock in ever-increasing abundance and with an efficiency that allowed an increasing share of the population to do something else besides produce food.

We've carried that process, a combination of education, technology and hard work, to the extreme. Now only a couple of million farmers produce a more than adequate food supply for well over 200 million Americans and millions more in the world market.

Perhaps in the short run a worldwide humanitarian effort can be mounted that will buy up surplus food and give it to hungry people.

Such an effort could involve a large share of our affluent and overweight society and it could solve a number of short-range problems.

Farm surpluses could be eliminated. Farm prices would surely improve and mass starvation could be avoided in many places.

But at best that's a short-range solution to an overwhelming problem. American farmers and others with current surpluses cannot in the long run feed the world's hungry people. There are just too many of them.

STOPS ROOTWORMS ALL SEASON LONG

When you switch to BROOT®—the unique brand of corn soil insecticide—you put an end to destructive rootworm larvae for the entire season. It's as simple as that.

Because when you put BROOT trimethacarb in the soil, it releases its active ingredient gradually. So, that means BROOT works for you throughout the whole season—to protect your valuable corn from rootworms until you harvest it. And don't worry if you plant early either, because you can depend on BROOT to stand up to those heavy rains and still provide you with long-lasting control.

BROOT is built tough. Tough enough to protect your corn from rootworms all season. Ask us about it and find out why it's the corn soil insecticide you should switch to.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

Bovine Genealogy: Every Cow Should Know Her Daddy

A rather shameful report is currently circulating among the DHIA dairymen. It is particularly shocking to the directors and supervisors of the DHIA tesdting program. Nearly one-third of the cows on test in Pennsylvania cannot be identified. That is, their sire is unknown.

Now, the reason that this is so shocking is that all of the genetic progress that we have made over the last 15 years is based on testing the offspring of known bulls. In order for a bull to be proven, his progeny must be correctly identified as well as production tested. It does little good to have production records on a cow if that record can't be used in proving the worth of her sire and dam.

One of the stumbling blocks in proper identification of a calf is the use of privately owned bulls, particularly on first-calf heifers. If a grade bull is used, there is little use in recording it. But most owners now use a registered bull, and as such he is identified and can be proven. So those private owner bulls deserve to have their progeny identified, especially if they are on test.

Some will argue that it is only the artificial insemination (AI) studs that are interested in sire identification. This may be true, but if it were not for their interest in identifying all the tested progeny of AI sires, there would have been little or no genetic progress in the dairy industry. Since about 80 percent of all dairy cows are sired by AI bulls, it becomes very important to test as many cows as possible. And a test record can be related to a particular sire only if that cow's sire can be identified.

The more daughters a bull has on test, the more reliable his proof becomes. The most reliable bull proofs are the ones that are compiled from daughters in many different herds. Many of those daughters are unregistered or grade cows, but if they were AI sired, the sire should be recorded and the identification made at birth. Here is where the dairyman, with a very little effort, can make a great contribution to genetic progress.

Who's Responsible?

Both the dairy farmer and the DHIA supervisor are jointly responsible for properly identifying calves. Every herd owner has a Calf Identification Book. Many good dairymen prefer to enter the data themselves. Others ask the supervisor to keep it. Some enter only the registered calves and forget the grades, even though they are sired by registered sires. Some just don't bother to write anything down at all. Whether you keep your own calf book or let the supervisor do it, it is every dairyman's responsibility to see that every calf is properly identified.

The DHIA supervisor may blame the farmer for not providing the information. The farmer might blame the supervisor for not reporting it. Who's responsible? The farmer first, who must take the time to record the breeding of each cow, identify the sire, and then record the birth, with both sire and dam identified.

The ultimate responsibility for proper identification must be

Truman Center handles all livestock imports, both exotic and expensive

WASHINGTON — What do llamas and alpacas, natives of the Andes Mountains in South America, have in common with exotic European cattle breeds such as Pie Rouge, Limousin and Charolais?

All can legally and safely enter the United States through only one point — the Harry S. Truman Import Center, located near Key West, Fla., and operated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The reason is foot-and-mouth disease, a devastating foreign livestock disease found in many countries but not in the United States, according to Dr. Galen E. Krill, the USDA veterinarian in charge of the facility on Fleming Key.

"Before entering this country, all cloven-hoofed animals from infected countries must undergo stringent import quarantines and testing to ensure they do not bring the disease with them," he said. "The Truman Import Center is the only place that provides the necessary security."

The center, operated by USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, recently handled hundreds of the South American and European livestock. In mid-November, about 300 Chilean llamas and alpacas successfully completed their three-month quarantine, said Krill.

The center remained vacant for one month for thorough cleaning and disinfection. Then it welcomed 90 head of livestock from five European countries. According to Krill, the animals now await their mid-March dismassal date.

"The animals hail from France, England, Italy, German and Switzerland," he said. "The imported breeds are relatively rare in the United States and include Tarentaise, Piedmontise and Simmental, as well as Pie Rouge, Limousin, Charolais and Gelbvieh.

"If no disease is found during their stay, they will be released to their owners."

Foot-and-mouth disease is a highly contagious viral disease that affects cloven-hoofed ruminants and swine. The disease is difficult to control because it can be spread easily; the virus remains viable in straw, pasture, carcasses and animal byproducts. Recognizable signs of the disease include lameness, loss of appetite and excessive amounts of stringy and foamy saliva.

"Foot-and-mouth disease has been identified in Asia, Africa, South America and Europe," said Krill. "Because of the widespread distribution of the disease, the chance of accidental introduction into the United States is great."

Between 1900 and 1929, there were six outbreaks in the United States; since then, there have been none. Because of the threat of additional outbreaks, federal legislation was enacted in 1930 to prohibit the importation of any animal from a foot-and-mouth affected country.

Forty years later, new legislation provided for the establishment of an isolated animal import station. In 1979, this station, the Harry S. Truman Animal Import Center, opened its doors, Krill said.

All animals are flown into nearby Boca Chica naval air station. From there, they are transported to the center in a special, sectioned animal trailer with filtered ventilation.

After the animals are unloaded, the truck and trailer are cleaned and disinfected. The animals are inspected, washed and sprayed for ticks and other parasites and then logged in. Individual health records are carefully reviewed, said Krill.

The imported animals then undergo additional tests and remain under close observation for 90 days.

"Foot-and-mouth disease is so contagious, it can travel on a memo sent from where the animals are kept to the general office area. That's why workers at the center don't even use paper — they transmit information electronically," said Krill.

"Few animals fail the quarantine, but if one is infected with a disease that prohibits entry, there are options. The animal can be returned to the country of origin or sent to any country that will accept it at the owner's expense. Usually, however, it is humanely destroyed and its carcass is specially incinerated to prevent spread of the disease.

"The Center is important to many U.S. agriculturists. New bloodlines are necessary for the future of American agriculture; newly introduced diseases are not.

The Department will hold a lottery on March 14 to allocate space for quarantining the imported breeding cattle.

"The lottery will take place only if we receive requests to quarantine at least 50 animals," said John K. Atwell, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Application forms can be obtained from: Import-Export Staff, APHIS, USDA, 838 Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Md. 20782. They should be returned to the same address by March 8, along with a $1,000 deposit for each animal to be imported.

Importers or their certified representatives must attend the lottery at 9 a.m. on Thursday, March 14 in room 643A of the Federal Building.

There will be two quarantine periods at the import center this year, with South American cattle scheduled to arrive Aug. 15 and European cattle scheduled to arrive Dec. 15. Quarantine lasts 90 days for each group.

placed on the DHIA supervisor. Identification must be reported to be effective. It takes only a little more time but adds immensely to the value of test records. The supervisor can encourage the farmer to keep the record, and then make it available for the DHIA record. As with most joint endeavours, cooperation is the key.

USDA officials say that to import 50 to 55 animals from Europe, the cost per head is $2,265 at the premises of origin (for initial preparations) and another $7,113 for quarantining each animal at Brest, France, and at the USDA import center after arrival.

Similarly, a group of this size coming from Brazil incurs initial on-the-farm expenses of $1,815 per head and another $7,251 for quarantine services at Cannaneia, Brazil, and at the USDA import center.

For larger groups, the cost per head is considerably lower. But, USDA officials warn that at any stage, cattle being considered for import can be disqualified because of evidence the animals might be diseased – putting the importer at considerable risk.

During the past 6 years or so Brassica crops (rape, kale, turnips and swedes) have gotten a great deal of attention in Pennsylvania. But they certainly are not new.

These cool-season crops were grown for forage in Europe in the 1700's, possibly earlier, and were brought to the U.S. by early colonists. They were researched in eastern Canada in the late 1800's. And they were used for forage some 50-60 years ago in the eastern and mid-western USA.

In his book, "The Forage and Fiber Crops in America," published in 1912, Thomas Hunt, a Professor of Agronomy at Cornell, discussed all of the Brassicas. And Charles Piper in his 1914 published text, "Forage Plants and Their Culture," likewise devoted considerable attention to this group of crops.

Said Piper, a leader in Forage Crops Investigations for the USDA, "Rape is not an important forage crop in North America, but deserves far more attention than it has received. It is especially valuable for furnishing good feed in autumn and early winter when little other green feed is available. If thus utilized, it conserves the stock of hay and silage for winter use."

Why then, haven't these crops gained more favor in the U.S.? Mainly because climatic conditions here were much more favorable than in Europe and Canada for growing corn. Corn was a major source of cheap feed, both grain and silage.

And, as stated by Piper, "Perhaps the principle reason why these crops (Brassicas) are not grown where corn and grain sorghums can be produced is the large amount of hand labor required by the farmer."

During my travels throughout South Island, New Zealand and southeastern Australia during their fall of 1970, and later in northern England, Ireland and Scotland, I saw a variety of Brassica crops used extensively for fall grazing by beef and sheep.

But it was in the late 70's that Dr. Gerald Jung and associates at the USDA Regional Pasture Lab and Penn State University took another hard look at these crops for the Northeast.

In a 1979 published article Jung and co-workers wrote, "We proposed growing the crop without harvesting it by hand or machine - have animals do all of the harvesting; tops and roots. In many areas of the country the weather allows about 4 months for such harvest - August into December."

So much for history. The nutritive value of these crops was really never in question. They're high in dry matter digestibility and protein, and they apparently also increase the availability of certain minerals for livestock. Furthermore they retain their nutritive value well into freezing temperatures and can frequently be grazed well into December.

No-Till Seeding - Brassica Breakthrough

Brassica crops can be seeded on a prepared seedbed. But seeds are small, seeding rates are low (1½ - 3½ pounds/acre depending on species) and seeding depth is critical. So a good, form seedbed as well as properly calibrated drills or seeders are a must.

But the breakthrough for Brassica crops for pasture was the introduction of no-till seeding as a technique for pasture improvement. Pennsylvania and other states in the Northeast have thousands of pasture acres that need improving.

During the 70's the late Bill McClellan, along with Jung, proved time and time again that with herbicides to suppress existing vegetation, a sound lime and fertility program, and new precision no-till drills to do the seeding, getting stands of these crops was no problem

Furthermore, the firm sod permitted grazing in any type of weather - a situation not normally possible when seeded on a prepared seedbed.

Which Brassica to Use?

Rape and kale are leafy Brassicas, while turnips and swedes are root crops with all parts (roots, stems and leaves) utilized by grazing livestock.

Rape and turnips reach their maximum yields (up to 4 tons dry matter/A) between 90 and 100 days after planting. Thus, spring sown rape (mid-May) is ready for grazing or chopping by mid-August and would be available for a second grazing in late fall.

Swedes and kale require 150 to 180 days to reach maximum yields, up to 6 tons dry matter per acre. Planting can be made later in the summer, late July or early August, for October and November grazing.

Varieties currently available include Rangi Rape, Windal Rape, Green Globe and Marco Turnips and Calder Swedes.

As indicated previously seed of the various Brassicas is small. Thus, seeding rates of 1½ pounds per acre are sufficient for the root crops, turnips and swedes, while for rape and kale 3½ pounds per acre are adequate.

The Brassicas are fairly tolerant of acid soils (pH 5.2 or above) but respond to good fertility. At least medium levels (soil test) of P and K are a must and some 75 pounds of nitrogen per acre is always recommended.

Brassicas, like other annual or biennial forages, won't replace your perennial cool season pasture grasses and legumes. But there's plenty of evidence to suggest that for many livestock producers they can supplement your other pasture crops - and supply high quality feed in the late fall and early winter when other pasture is not available.

ACSC to measure land for '85 ACR program

LEBANON — To help farmers make sure that they are in compliance with the 1985 acreage reduction requirements and eligible for farm program benefits, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service is providing pre-measurement and other land measurement services.

At the request of the producer, the agency will stake and measure any type of acreage, or portions thereof.

"To be certain that program requirements are met, farmers are required to plant within the stakes that are placed when the land is pre-measured," said Lebanon county ASCS chairperson Frank Reist," and report their crop acreages to our office after planting."

He said pre-measurement is important in helping farmers plan the amount of land to devote to the acreage conservation reserve (ACR) and planted acreages of program crops.

The ACR is cropland removed from production and put into conserving uses under the 1985 acreage reduction programs. The programs require farmers to reduce their 1985 feed grain acres by 10 percent and wheat by 30 percent according to Frank Reist.

To be eligible for the price support loans, target prices and other program benefits, Mr. Reist said producers must certify actual planted acreages.

Other ASCS producer services include measuring total cropland, field or subdivisions to be planted and land acres for other purposes. Fees vary, based on the type of service rendered.

In order to schedule pre-measurement service requests on a timely basis, farmers are encouraged to apply early.

NEDCO sues NFO in milk contract dispute

SYRACUSE, N.Y. – NEDCO has filed suit against the National Farmers Organization (NFO) in U.S. District Court here, claiming NFO is picking up the milk of farmers currently under contract with NEDCO.

The suit requests damages of $250,000 and seeks an injunction ordering NFO to cease any further efforts to pick up the milk of farmers under contract to the Syracuse based cooperative. Most of the producers in the suit are located in northern Pennsylvania, said NEDCO Chief Executive Officer, Dean McCormac.

According to McCormac, NFO is violating the basic membership contract right between producers and NEDCO.

"We're also asking for damages in that NFO's actions are alleged to be in violation of a permanent injunction issued against NFO in October 1974," he said. "The injunction was issued by Onondaga Supreme Court Justice Thomas Aloi, prohibiting NFO from soliciting NEDCO producers", said McCormac

He added that NFO's action violates both Pennsylvania and New York laws.

McCormac said that investigations are also underway to see if NFO is picking up milk of other NEDCO cooperatives illegally.

Empnasizing the gravity of the situation, the NEDCO Chief Executive Officer said that the NEDCO farmers who violated their contracts to go with NFO are also being named in separate legal actions by the cooperative. McCormac further stated that NEDCO is preparing suits against other dealers who are illegally picking up milk of NEDCO producers still under contract to the cooperative.

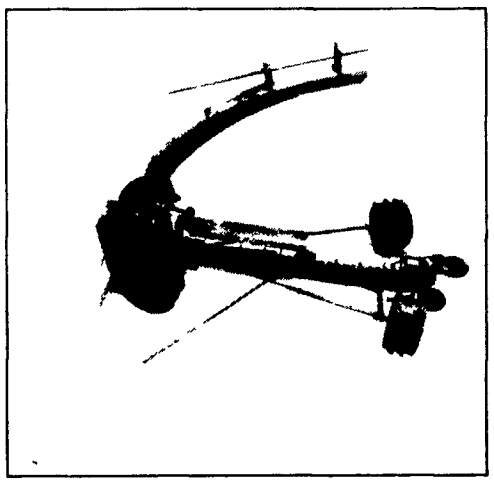
SAFETY NOTICE

Patz Silo Unloader

ATTENTION: Owners of Patz Silo Unloader Models 61, 66 and 98 manufactured from 1960 to 1971 (14 to 25 years old) All models involved were originally green



State of the art guarding at the time of manufacture may not fully cover the area of the gathering chain. Although the unloader should not be operated with persons in the silo, serious injuries caused by the gathering chain while ignoring this safety practice have been reported. To help prevent accidents that may result in injury or death, Patz offers owners of unloaders involved, three options that provide improved gathering chain guarding

Option 1. For unloaders already converted to the big (30") drive wheels, Patz will provide improved guarding for the gathering chain at no cost to the user

Option 2. For unloaders having original small (18") drive wheels, Patz will provide improved guarding at no cost, but it will require the purchase and installation of the big (30") drive wheel kit, which will improve traction, and flotation The improved guarding will not work with the small (18") drive wheels

Option 3. Patz will pay U S $400 directly to the owner who buys a new Patz Silo Unloader with its new up-to-date features Owners can keep their present unloader's motor, electrical joint and electric cable This further reduces the price, making the new Patz Unloader more affordable Patz will send payment when verification of installation is furnished and old unloader is returned to Patz

If you presently own a Patz Unloader Model 61, 66 or 98, manufactured from 1960-1971, for your protection contact us today

CAUTION: Silos may contain poisonous gases Proper precaution should be taken before entering Entering the silo without locking out the electrical power could result in serious injury or death if power is turned on while anyone is in the silo
